BIGGEST QUESTION TODAY IS "WHAT WILL COOLIDGE DO WHEN GOVERNORS MEET TO DISCUSS PROHIBITION LAW?"

Washington, Oct. 18.—How President Coolidge expects to clamp the dry lid on America was a matter of speculation today in political circles. When the President faces the governors in conference on law enforcement Saturday, he is expected to outline a program to meet a situation declared by the late President Harding as a "national scandal."

Unless Mr. Coolidge presents a specific method of meeting the flagrant violation of the Volstead act, some fear the dry forces will bring in a new Governor Pinchot who hung a challenge to the President at the Citizens' Prohibition Conference on Sunday.

The President's advisors are urging him to strike a happy medium between the extreme views on prohibition advocated by Governor Pinchot and former Governor Allen of Kansas, who advocated governors of wet states proclaiming martial law as a means of enforcement fails.

HOW TO OWN YOUR HOME

Write to Department of Commerce, Superintendent of Documents and for Five Cents They Will Send You a Very Interesting Little Booklet

IT IS A GOOD GUIDE FOR HOME SEEKERS

Pennsylvania was one of 18 states to show an increase in the percentage of families owning their own homes, according to "How to Own Your Home," an official handbook just issued for prospective home owners by the Department of Commerce. In 1900, the manual shows the number of families owning their homes compared 41 per cent and this increased to 45.2 in 1920.

Pennsylvania's home ownership record also led that of the Middle Atlantic group, made up of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the group average being 37.2 families out of 1,000, the tables show, but her average was slightly lower than that for the entire country, with 42.2 families listed as home owners in 1920 out of each 1,000, as against 46.6 out of each 1,000 for the United States.

Secretary Hoover, in the foreword to the handbook, points out that in buying or building a home a man must not only carry out the transaction of financing and buying a building, but must determine the location with respect to schools, work and the neighborhood. "How to Own Your Home," which was prepared by John M. Gries and James S. Taylor, of the Division of Building and Housing, accordingly aims to "describe the steps and precautions to be taken in carrying out the transaction with the least possible risk and the best assurance of final satisfaction."

"Although most men and women who buy a house have never done it before and are usually unskilled, as people generally are in the things they do but once or twice in a lifetime, the prospective home owner who carefully considers the real needs of his family and his ability to pay, and who checks his own judgment by consulting experienced persons, may go ahead with full confidence. He need not be frightened by the mistakes of heedless persons who have been carried away by some novel feature and seized into a bad bargain, or who have tried to buy beyond their means. While some risks are involved, as is usually the case in obtaining anything worth while, the danger of failure is relatively small when weighed against the advantages of an owned home."

"Today, in the period of post-war recovery, when our national productivity is increasing, we have the opportunity to make definite progress in the right direction. However, the development of the automobile has given a great impulse to suburban life and an increasing possibility of home ownership. Happily a large section of the people are awake to the problem and an increasing number of business groups have publicly acknowledged their responsibility and interest in it. They realize that unless ready barriers that may encompass a man determined to own his own home are hindrances to good community spirit and to good business."

In "How to Own Your Home" emphasis is laid at the outset on the importance of the decision the authors likening this step to purchase in a business partnership. "A family that has saved up enough to make a first payment and has paid its rent regularly when due has given good evidence of its ability to pay for and own a home," say the authors. "Homes are usually bought from savings. Habits of saving are best begun in early childhood; but adults who have not already begun to save toward buying a home should start at once. Many find the buying of a home the largest investment they ever made. But lack of experience should deter no one."

The question of how much to pay for a home is thoroughly discussed in the Department of Commerce handbook which says that "The exact amount to be spent on a home can be determined wisely only by carefully checking over the family's needs and its expenses." The pamphlet declares that "building and loan associations will, in many cases, prove the best means of financing a home, for they are often able to loan as much as 70 to 80 per cent of the real value of a home, which is generally above the limit allowed by law for savings banks and insurance companies."

In the matter of choosing suitable location for a home, "How to Own Your Home" lists as factors to be considered: Low or high land values; transportation facilities; protection, including fire and police; character of neighborhood; accessibility of schools and playgrounds; shade trees, character of soil and necessity for grading, filling or draining. What to look for in house plans and insistence on good quality of construction are included in the topics covered by the manual.

"In addition to payments on principal and interest of loans on a home," it says, "allowance must be made for some or all of the following expenses: Renewals and repairs; property tax and special assessments; insurance; water tax or rent; accessories and improvements."

Final revisions were made today in the impeachment indictment against Governor J. C. Walton, which will probably be presented to the lower house of the legislature tomorrow. The House adjourned today awaiting completion of the report against the governor.

Socialists were confident purely earthly explanation will be found in the messages from those on the other side, which Mrs. Stewart produced in broad daylight on a Long Island road garden on Tuesday.

SAXON PRESIDENT DEFIES DICTATOR GENERAL MUELLER

Stands Ready to Fight for the Dictatorship of Proletariat, He Tells Members of the Diet.

INDICATES COURSE

Berlin, Oct. 18.—The radical President of Saxony, Dr. Zeigner, today openly defied the demand of the federal dictator of the Dresden district, General Mueller.

He opposed answering the General's letter, demanding that the Saxony cabinet disavow the fiery speeches of the Saxony Finance Minister, Boettcher.

Zeigner declared in the Diet today he was ready to fight for a dictatorship of the Proletariat.

Zeigner read the letter from General Mueller, demanding disavowal to the Diet, asserting he objected to such demand as interference with his Government. Although he swore allegiance to the constitution, he said the rights guaranteed by the constitution had been broken, and that he was preparing for a struggle, if necessary.

Mueller's letter, while making no definite threats, formally demanded a reply by eleven o'clock today.

The Saxony Communist's path was indicated by Boettcher when he advocated selling the state forests to buy bread for the hungry people. Zeigner also advocated selling the royal jewels of the old monarchistic government of Saxony to America in order to obtain money to stimulate production in factories. Members of the "Thuringian Government" also partly Communists, advocated installation of Ruhr foreign trade methods but on sound principles.

Emergency efforts to relieve acute hunger among the population by distribution of food appeared effective in Berlin. The Bourgeois, frightened by Tuesday's demonstration, furnished large supplies and several trillion marks for the workers.

Berlin, Oct. 18.—The Diet of Saxony today instructed General Mueller in Dresden to use police only in scattering the faction Communists, "red hundreds."

The order was interpreted as a complete breakdown by the federal government, which previously threatened to use the army. Mueller was instructed to hold his troops in reserve.

The order came only after several hours' debate between government leaders and a section of the cabinet, which was understood to favor letting Mueller go ahead in using the army to enforce federal supremacy in Saxony.

Chancellor Stresemann, however, insisted on a moderate course.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. James, who have been spending the past month with E. J. Walther and family, left on Wednesday morning for Washington, D. C. where they will visit for some time. Mr. James has been located at Denver, Col., for several years but having recently disposed of his home there, is visiting among friends in the East, before locating elsewhere.

CHICAGOANS FORM SOCIETY TO CARRY ON GEORGE'S PLAN

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 18.—Lloyd George's American tour today began to bear fruit in the organization here of a movement to carry on, after he departs, the campaign he set in motion for American participation in a practical businesslike settlement of the world's troubles.

One of the first efforts by those who want to take advantage of such sentiments as Lloyd George has created in this country for American participation in Europe will be directed toward getting the Coolidge administration at Washington more actively interested.

The first step in this, as Lloyd George has pointed out in practically all the speeches he has made, is to settle the reparations problem. He has repeatedly told his audiences that the Hughes Commission plan is the only sensible way to arrive at a reparations settlement.

In a speech last night he gave his audience a detailed explanation of reparations, told them how the prosperity of the United States depended on a settlement, told them how the French policy would never succeed, declared that if France and Belgium would not settle to the Hughes plan and it was shown that Germany could pay more and would not, "Then we can go together to force her to pay."

Edison Thinks Ford Is Better As Manufacturer Than As Our President

New York, Oct. 17.—Thomas A. Edison, in one of the first interviews he ever granted to newspaper men, spoke today of the presidential possibilities of his friend Henry Ford, and declared it "would spoil a good man, if the nation sent Ford to the White House."

Mr. Edison expressed the opinion that the automobile manufacturer was more valuable to the nation as a manufacturer than as a president.

Talking to the prediction of Charles Steinmetz, the inventor, that electricity eventually would reduce the working day to four hours, with this opinion Mr. Edison agreed. Mr. Edison, however, was not sure that the four hour day would be a good thing for the nation. He expressed fears that two large leisure classes would be created and this would have a bad effect, especially on the young.

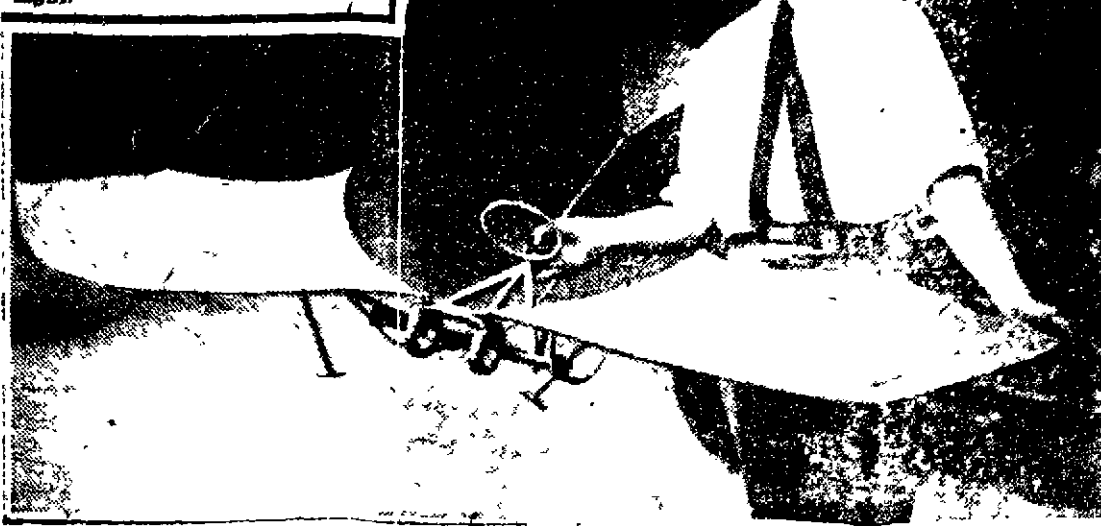

Within a very few years, he said, coal would be transformed into electrical energy at the mine and distributed throughout the country in high power transmission lines, doing more quickly and efficiently the work now performed by the fuel after long hauling and much handling. Transportation costs and various other charges not connected with getting fuel energy to the consumers would thus be obviated.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. William Rolfe and at their home on Daisy street, which was founded daughter on Monday, October 15th.

Mrs. P. W. Rolley of Karthaus shopped in town today.

Way Back in 1490

Didn't know they thought of airplanes back in 1490? Well, they did. William P. Garber, who makes the models for the Smithsonian Institution, is shown with a model made from plans drawn by Leonardo da Vinci in 1490. So far as is known these plans were the first practical step towards mechanical flight.

HAS A PUBLIC LIBRARY ANY PART IN AMERICANIZATION?

At first thought it may appear that there is no Americanization problem in Clearfield. There is. It is not serious, but it is here. Fortunately we have a very high class of foreign residents and the rapidly assimilating American ideas and ideals. In fact they hunger for them. A library can and will play a leading part in completing their education in Americanization. Children of non-English speaking parents must be able to carry English books into the houses of foreign-born Americans. American books are the apostle of American ideas. Foreigners who cannot read English use it, and from the books they borrow gain an understanding of what Americanism really is. And those of us who call ourselves Americans have a lot to learn too. In many cases we can learn with them.

By supplying good, healthy reading matter, it does much to curtail the reading of vicious and injurious books by boys. The boys of today are the citizens of tomorrow whether they be born of American parents or not. We must take care of the future.

Rotary Club Members Practice High Tenor Ditties For Banquet

There was a fine attendance at last night's meeting of the Clearfield Rotary Club. The meeting was given over to planning for next week's entertainment of the ladies and the teachers of the Clearfield public schools.

Chairman Kurtz, of the Library Committee again boosted the library proposition, urging all Rotarians to assist in the movement by helping to combat, what the speaker styled unfair argument and propaganda against the library.

A. G. Bartholomew, who is arranging to have his friend, Lt. Oakley Kelly, of Game City, come to Clearfield to address Rotary reported that Lieut. Kelly was unable to get home last week, but he felt sure he would be on hand for next week's meeting.

Rotarian Joseph Apple, President of Hood College, noted President Stewart that it would be impossible for him to come to Clearfield next Wednesday evening as he was celebrating an anniversary of his college on that day.

The President announced that another top-notch speaker would be on hand for ladies' night. Announcement of the meeting of the Lakes to the Sea Highway Association at Clearfield today was made after which all hands rapped up their bar room time on "Sweet Adeline" and a few other familiar ditties they expect to sing on the ladies next Wednesday evening.

MOTOR BOATS SAID TO BE DRIVEN OUT TO SEA BY GALE

New York, Oct. 18.—Five motor boats carrying passengers were caught in a gale off Coney Island today and a disabled. Distress signals were seen flying from the boats by watchers along the shore and life boats were rushed to port the boats. The boats were dispatched to the rescue.

JOHN W. WRIGLEY, WORTHY CITIZEN, DIED LAST NIGHT

John W. Wrigley, one of Clearfield's leading citizens, who has been critically ill the past week, passed away at the Clearfield Hospital last evening at 11:45 o'clock.

The passing of Mr. Wrigley removes a man who has been a big factor in the development of the central part of Pennsylvania and a moving spirit in Clearfield county affairs.

Funeral services will be held from his late home on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Wallacetown Farmer Is Struck By Train; Flung On Pilot

Erie Gilpatrick, a prominent farmer living on the old road between Bigler and Wallacetown at a point near the two railroad crossings on that road, both of which were eliminated by building of the new state road, is lying seriously hurt at the Cottage State Hospital at Philipsburg with head injuries, as a result of being struck by a train last evening.

Mr. Gilpatrick spent the afternoon in Philipsburg and on returning home in the evening in a Ford coupe he was struck by the N. Y. C. train enroute to Williamsport. The Ford was carried two hundred feet and smashed to kindling while Mr. Gilpatrick was flung onto the pilot of the engine and was still there when the train was brought to a stop. His son, Nello, witnessed the accident, trying in vain to inform his father of the approaching train, but was unable to make him hear because of construction of the car. At a late hour this afternoon his condition is said to be serious, though not critical.

WILL SPEAK TO PHILIPSBURG ROTARY CLUB

William P. Sheeder, of Clearfield will be the speaker before the Philipsburg Rotary Club next Thursday evening. On this occasion the club will observe "Retailers' night" and the Philipsburg club has made an excellent selection in "Our Bill" as he knows the retail business from the beginning to the end.

Sec'y Slump Popular With All Parties at Capital

By FRASER EDWARDS (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 18.—Some men succeed by efficiency. Affability is a "strong hold" of others. But C. Bascom Slump, secretary to the President, combines the two. The attributes that made him popular in Congress are bringing success in the White House offices.

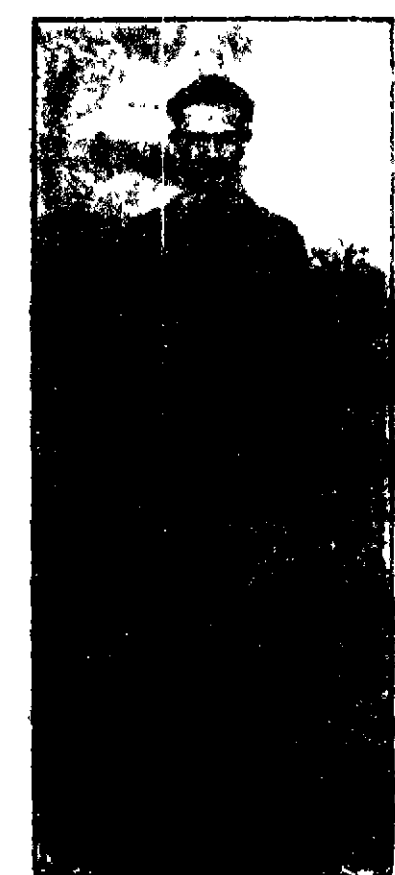

This apparently easy-going Virginia mountaineer is an apostle of the clean desk. How he does it no one knows. He seems never to hurry, yet he is always swiftly signing correspondence or reading memoranda and memos and shunting them along to President Coolidge. And all the while in a room full of people.

An army of callers march through his office daily. His exacting duties take every minute of his time, but it is never too busy to see anyone who calls. And he knows how to help them feel at home and how to send them away with a smile.

Ambassadors, Senators, politicians and folks from the "forks of the creek"—all look alike to the affable Slump. He speaks all languages—their native tongue. He has reduced efficiency to a science and affability to an art.

Slump is a lightning-change artist, yet he requires no make-up but a true serge suit. All see the same tall, slim, slightly stoop-shouldered Slump, with thin, iron-gray hair, whose large, round, kindly brown eyes gaze squarely at you from an oval face-compositioned face. The difference lies in his manner.

Addressed in Own Language. With a brilliance that always led to his companions.

Captain Kenneth Barnes, of Clearfield High School grid football team, was out of last Saturday's game to injuries for the second time in two seasons. He has been a member of the varsity. He is at present in a quarterback, and by light of the fact when he did not dare force his way back again and will enter Saturday's game with Ridgway in fair condition. His good form was brought out Wednesday night when he scored three touchdowns against the Redskins.

Lee Hills, a former pupil of Clearfield Penn State coach, is a student of Coach Reed in correcting some faults of line play. The scrimmage last night showed improved defense and that with the solid co-operation of such backs as Morris, Dale, Barnes, Wilson, and Mitchell will present a very well balanced eleven Saturday. Mr. Hyde of the Clearfield High School with a fine pair of goal posts, which will be in readiness for Saturday's game. Mr. Hyde said he goal post will be of great assistance in the football game, but the post Clearfield falls will act as a magnetic force to the Clearfield team.

Lawrence Mow and William Lettinger motored to Ann Arbor today for the week-end and to attend a football game between the University and Ohio State.

SCIENCE AND MAGIC IN CONTROVERSY GROWING OUT OF CHICAGO MEDIUM'S PERFORMANCE AT LONG ISLAND HOME

New York, Oct. 18.—The question of whether science is more clever than the magicians was being tested here today.

While Mrs. Joseph K. Stewart, who claims to be a medium between the mundane world and the spirit world, maintains a spiritual reception cell in her hotel room here and science has examined her case petal communication in an attempt to determine "How does she do it?"

There was little tendency on the part of the hard-headed men of science to consider the hypothesis that Mrs. Stewart, who is pastor of the First Independent Church of Cleveland, O., really can obtain messages from the dead.

Socialists were confident purely earthly explanation will be found in the messages from those on the other side, which Mrs. Stewart produced in broad daylight on a Long Island road garden on Tuesday.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

More than $1,000,000,000 is lost in this country each year through headless speculation and failures, according to George E. Lloyd, savings director for the Third Federal Reserve district. This amounts to about $10 loss for each person, or about $45 on the average for each family.

Despite the fact that some Methodist pastors in the country as well as pastors of other churches have permitted members of the Ku Klux Klan to visit their churches during services and present them with envelopes containing money, even going so far as to commend the Klan in their movements, the Rev. Dr. Francis J. McConnell, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church of Pittsburgh, is strongly opposed to the organization.

In a letter to a friend in Middletown, N. Y., this bishop says: "I regard the Klan as anti-American and undemocratic and anti-Christian in its methods, no matter how high its ideas may be."

Passing during the trial of liquor cases Tuesday at Scranton, Federal Judge C. B. Witmer called attention to the 400 cases of alleged violations of the prohibition law before the federal courts of Pennsylvania, and declared that Gov. Pinchot, "instead of calling on others to take personal supervision of liquor violations, should set an example by using the state courts to punish the violators."

Such a course, Judge Witmer said, not only would convince the people of the governor's sincerity in his proclaimed efforts to wipe out liquor violations, but also would greatly assist the federal government in the orderly and efficient administration of the law.

There are 13,002,427 registered motor cars in the United States, according to Washington statistics. About one per cent of the drivers of same will stop for a pedestrian at a crossing. Why wonder at the rapid pace of American generally? They have to make it snappy to save their lives.

People of the Barrett and downriver sections could have secured a lot of cheap feeds the past summer had we run across this recipe a little sooner:

A locust cookbook has been issued by the Bureau of Agriculture of the Philippine Islands. To prepare the locusts they are poured alive into boiling water and then spread out on shallow trays to dry. Wings, legs and tip of body are trimmed off and they are then rinsed in water. Small locusts need not have legs removed as they are tender. One recipe is as follows: Boil locusts for about ten minutes in sufficient vinegar, salt, and crushed garlic, and when the vinegar dries off fry in lard.

When can a man "read and write English"? The question is a grave one in New York, where a recent constitutional amendment makes literacy to this extent a qualification for voters who wish to cast their ballot for the first time. Is it sufficient to be able to re-rail the words on the first page of a grammar-school primer—"I have a dog—mamma, see my dog—my dog can see me"—and having written them, read them aloud to the judge-electors? Or must a fledgling voter spell through a sonorous paragraph from the Declaration of Independence and write an essay on the New York election laws? The case has gone to New York's court of final resort, carried there by the state attorney general.

It I worked in a bent position I got a sharp pain in my back and it was hard to straighten. Russians Honor Americans Who Died In Relief Administration's Service During War Against Great Famine

EXTERIOR BLANDY SCHOOL AT UFA

INTERIOR BLANDY CHILDRENS HOME AT UFA

Harold F. Blandy of New York, the American Relief Administration worker who died in Ufa, Russia, from typhus contracted while working among the disease-stricken victims of the Great Famine, has been honored by having two Russian institutions named for him.

At Ufa the Blandy Memorial Hospital is ministering to the needs of the population and the name of the young American martyr is held in sacred remembrance. On the anniversary of his death, ten thousand people of the city knelt bareheaded in the square on which the hospital faces, while the Russian archbishop of the Ufa Diocese celebrated a requiem mass. High officials and church dignitaries marched in the procession and they were followed by long lines of peasants and workers who had been saved from starvation by the help of America. There were children in the procession who had eaten in the A. R. A. kitchens; men and women to whom the American gift of corn had come as manna from heaven; grateful patients whose diseases had been healed with medicaments which American charity had brought to Russia; mothers whose children had been born within the walls of the hospital whose doors would have been closed to them had it not been for A. R. A. support.

And out in the city of Miasa, not far from Ekaterinburg on the edge of Siberia, there is the Blandy Memorial Home for Children where famine-waited and orphaned are still being fed from the rations that the A. R. A. left behind.

Nor is Harold Blandy the only American to be so honored. At Simbirsk, where Philip B. Sheldis mysteriously disappeared, and is admittedly dead, there is a Sheldis Memorial Home, the finest children's home in the entire city, a model in its equipment and management, whose juvenile inmates sleep between A. R. A. sheets, under American blankets, bathe with A. R. A. soap, dry themselves on A. R. A. towels, wear A. R. A. shoes and when they are sick, take A. R. A. medicines, as do the children in thousands of other government institutions throughout the Soviet Republic.

The A. R. A. has withdrawn from Russia but what America did there will not be forgotten. The relief ended because the famine which the far off American people had fought so successfully was at an end. Russia is no longer starving, but the masses of her people know where their salvation came from, and they are grateful.

Baby's Eyes

In Budapest recently a mother dropped into the eyes of a newborn baby a 10 per cent solution of silver nitrate instead of the one per cent solution that is obligatory there. The result, of course, was destruction of the eyeball and total blindness. To prevent the recurrence of such a disaster the highest sanitary authorities are ordering that a one per cent solution of silver nitrate be used instead of the silver nitrate for the purpose that it is impossible to make a stronger solution of the former.

Chinese Like Ulsters

Ulster overcoats have become popular with the Chinese in Manchuria. The weather class of Chinese always wear long outer garments of silk, which are easily damaged by rain or snow, and the long ulster, besides affording warmth, protects the silk clothing underneath.

Times for Gratitude

There is much greatness of mind in the owning of a good turn as in the doing of it; and we must no more force a requital out of season than be wanting in it.—Seneca.

Just Imagine!

Among the wives of the English coal miners there exists the curious custom of putting small bits of coal among the clean sheets on their beds. They believe that if they neglect to do this their husbands will meet with an accident before the sheets are changed.

Philosophy of Business. Over the door of their national bank, the Chinese have carved an adage which reads: "If you employ a man, trust him. If you cannot trust him, do not employ him." That is a good philosophy to apply to friendship as well as to business.—Delmonico.

PLENTY OF OUR MILK MAKES STALWART KIDDIES

There is everything in the milk that will make for the proper growth of muscle. Then, too, every drop of our milk goes through the pasteurization process and this eliminates any possibility of disease.

Investigations by eminent scientists that kiddies who have been fed on pasteurized milk have shown better growth, have had keener minds and have had fewer of the usual "kiddies" diseases simply because their little bodies have been built up to a point where they could resist the onslaughts of disease.

Give the kiddies plenty of our pasteurized milk.

"Such ado about nothing" would make a proper title for the little controversy over the way and wherefore of holding the Republican County Committee meeting here on Friday of last week.

The County Selector says he has been misquoted. Chairman Edwards probably took from the information he gained about the matter that the convention would have to be held quickly in order to get the same on the ballot.

The matter is of so little importance and of such little consequence that any further discussion of it by either party would be absurd.

Clearfield needs men. Men of the type and stripe who will be willing to shoulder a little more community responsibility.

We are well aware that many of our citizens will take exception to the above statement. Clearfield does things and has a record for putting across about everything that comes along that is worth while.

But we cannot stand on our record. An air in the air never produces a boat. An engine under full steam never hauls a train unless there is an engineer at the throttle.

The fact of the matter is that Clearfield is falling down on the things that she is tackling lately. Do not ask us to state cases. That would indeed be humiliating.

If we are to liken this town to a train, let it be said that there are too few engineers. The great majority of our people have been assuming the "let George do it" pose and, as a result, nearly every community effort in the town has settled down on the shoulders of a few "riding horses" who, bless their souls, will not let the train get off a siding.

Now too easily find excuses for not taking up community work. The executive boards of worth-while propositions are suffering from a lack of membership.

Some call will go out for service. Let those who are asked to do so answer favorably. They will find joy in a service to their community.

The signs of the times indicate that the so-called Independent party has become a "good angel."

Joe and Sam are seen out on the highways and byways quite frequently and it is said that they are working for the incorporation of the town.

In addition to this indication that the signs of war are or are to be, the publicity agent is indulging in advertising a considerable extent.

This advertisement, in the nature of an attack on the old board who spent money to attack the old board. That was very ably done during the primary campaign.

What the voters want to know is what is offered as a substitute for the old board. They must be convinced that a change is worth while.

What particular thing or things can be mentioned about Messrs. Boyce and McCracken as commissioners' qualifications? Have they been successful business administrators and in what way have they succeeded? These questions must be answered.

The voters also want to know what relationship will exist between Messrs. Boyce and McCracken and Joe in case they are elected.

AMERICAN TIN PLATE FOR THE WORLD

Eighty countries and colonies are now buying this comparatively new product of the American factory. Our exports of tin plate in last decade $250,000,000 against $20,000,000 in preceding decade.

Announcement that the tin plate industry of the United States in the current year will be the "biggest ever" illustrates the facility with which American manufacturers and workmen develop great industries in comparatively brief periods. It was not until about 1880, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, that the manufacture of tin plate in the United States began. Prior to that time we were entirely dependent upon tin plate from abroad and the importations ran into the hundreds of millions of pounds annually, and in the fiscal year 1891 crossed the billion pound mark making in 1936-1937 a record of a value of $36,000,000.

Then the American manufacturers, recognizing that while the United States produced no tin they did make plenty of non-ferrous sheets, and that by bringing the tin from the other side of the globe they could apply it to the American iron sheets and supply to the people of the United States the enormous and constantly increasing quantity of tin plate which they were requiring in their building and other industries. In the first full year following the establishment of the industry, 1892, they turned out 42,000,000 pounds of tin plate, by 1900 it had reached $50,000,000 pounds, in 1903 the output passed a billion pounds, in 1912 it was over 2,000,000,000, in 1917 more than 3,000,000,000, and in 1923 it slightly exceeded the high record established in 1917 when we were not only meeting our entire domestic requirements but supplying enormous quantities to other parts of the world.

Meantime the importations of foreign tin plate had dropped from the one billion pounds of 1891 to 95,000,000 in 1911, 10,000,000 in 1915, and 1,000,000 in 1917. Since the close of the war there has been a slight increase in the importation but still an extremely small quantity as compared with the domestic production, which as above indicated is now running at the rate of about 3 1/2 billion pounds a year.

The whole world has gradually learned the value of American tin plate and the exports, which amounted to less than a quarter of a million pounds in 1900, were 26,000,000 in 1910, 106,000,000 in 1913, and with the demands of the war jumped to 560,000,000 in 1918, dropping of course with the close of the war and resumption of tin plate manufacture in Europe, but will stand for the current year at about 250,000,000 pounds with a value of approximately $13,000,000.

All of this 3 1/2 billion pounds of tin plate which we are making in the United States in 1923 is coated with tin brought chiefly from the other side of the globe. The Malayan Peninsula, a couple of tiny Dutch East Indian Islands and our South American neighbor, Bolivia, are the world's chief producers of tin and it is from these three spots, two of them on the opposite side of the globe and one in the interior of South America, that we bring the $60,000,000 worth of pig tin used in turning out this enormous quantity of tin plate.

And we pay for a part of this tin ore which we bring chiefly from the Malayan Peninsula and the Dutch East Indies with American sheets of iron or steel coated with the tin brought from those sections of the globe. Our exportation of tin plate to the Straits Settlements, the biggest source of tin, amounted in the calendar year 1921, the latest year for which details are available, to nearly 10,000,000 pounds, and to the Dutch East Indies, which also supply us a large quantity of tin, about 7,000,000 pounds. The total value of tin plate exported from the United States since the beginning of the war is approximately $250,000,000 as against approximately $20,000,000 in the decade preceding the war.

The exportation of this comparatively new product of the American factory is now distributed to literally every part of the globe, the total number of countries and colonies to which it was sent in 1921, the latest year for which details are available, having been over eighty. The census records show that the capital invested in the tin plate industry of the country has advanced from $6,650,000 in 1900 to $34,915,000 in 1919 and the sales paid for wages from $1,890,000 to $5,756,000. The factory valuation of the tin plate output was $11,892,000 in 1900 and $97,404,000 in 1910.

Progress Editorial For Women

WHEN THE SOLE TELLS ONE'S FORTUNE

If we all wear sandals it will be very easy. What will be easy? Why, reading the sole of the foot instead of the palm of the hand, to be sure.

For it looks as though that is what the dreamy-eyed, kikmonga-swathed ladies who peer into the future would come to presently. Some doctor has said that a girl's feet indicate what her disposition is better than her hands, or what old Mammy called her "fingahogany."

So, if Harold wishes to know whether Gladys will make a good wife or not, according to this progressive or thopoeic surgeon, he should have her foot read. Callouses, corns, bunions, and other high-heeled evils indicate a lack of good sense, says the doctor. Low arches mean a cruel and exacting disposition. If Gladys is downright flatfooted, she has every chance of invalidism, and never can make the "good girl" so much desired in the athletic days.

Of course, if Gladys and Ethel and Mae think more of the great good style than they do of health and canoes of married happiness, they will keep right on wearing stiff-heeled shoes with French names—heels that curl over at the side and wear off unevenly; that come off now and then in an emergency and give one an unlovely walk at best; heels that are liable to be bent and thrown the wearer headlong and that are responsible, say the thopoeists, for calloused heels that threaten to develop into horny hoofs in a few thousand years or so.

But once let the sport shoe, with its low, broad heel, come into universal use, with one on prettier lines and a bit more raised for dress occasions and the hoof-poll will be averted; straight backs and sunny dispositions will flourish; Gladys and her sisters will be able to tramp and climb and dance without fatigue, and Cupid will wear his kindest smile, with dimples.

As for the sandals that the lovely Grecian maidens of thousands of years ago fastened about their graceful ankles, the business woman might not find them practical in the dusty paved streets of today, but what could be greater for hours of relaxation? And when one hears a wheedle some "Let me read the sole of your foot, my pretty lady," there will be fewer unlovely marks of hard usage to display, and a correspondingly hopeful prophecy for the future may be expected.

For County Commissioner VOTE FOR JOHN BOYCE of Clearfield

BLAKE W. McCracken of Mahaffey

The Nominees of the Independent Party For This Important Office. TO THE VOTERS OF CLEARFIELD COUNTY:

It would take entirely too much space to give all the reasons why the taxpayers of Clearfield County should vote against the present "poor old board" of County Commissioners and replace two of them with the successful business men whose names are presented at the head of this column and will be found marked "Independent" on the November election ballot. But here are a few of the reasons why every taxpayer should vote against the "old board."

Do you know that the "old board" spent $22,000 in outside relief last year? Building political fences for re-election.

Do you know that your taxes have increased about eight mills during their incumbency? Do you know that two members of that "old board," who want to be re-elected, do not pay one cent of poor or County Home taxes, while every other taxable and district except DuBois, pays 8 1/4 mills poor tax for support and maintenance of the County Home and its inmates?

Do you know that the County spends $50,000 per year on its County Home and that these men who pay not one cent of poor taxes decide, not only what you shall pay, but how that money shall be spent? Do you know that while all the "party politicians" place holders and organization supporters are preaching party regularity and stick to the ticket, their claims are all political and none—no, not one—has ever offered a word of defense for the "old board?"

Do you know there is a reason for this lack of defense of the "old board"—nothing can be said in their defense. They have been a "poor old board" for the entire four years of their term.

So far as the political angle is concerned, do you recall that when this "poor old board" organized our years ago, one Republican member made a combination with his Democratic colleague, which was not only "political," but was as scheduled to be, an offensive and defensive alliance. It proved to be offensive to every taxpayer but, it was not defensive, as there can be no defense of it made now, in view of what it cost the taxpayers of the County. To start with, while one man ran both County Home and Farm before, it has taken two men since—a steward and a farmer.

Do you know anything about the conditions of the County Home and Farm now? If not, inquire of someone who does.

Every taxpayer owes it to himself to see that this "poor old board" is retired from office at the November election. Clearfield County does an annual business of more than $400,000. The office of County Commissioner is a business proposition. Elect successful business men like John Boyce and Blake W. McCracken to transact the County business for you.

BURNS, CUTS, BRUISES

San Cura Ointment Relieves Pain Draws Out Poison and Heals Promptly

There is no better remedy for burns, cuts and bruises than the antiseptic and healing ointment called San Cura. Every person ought to have a jar on hand; it is the first and best aid to the injured in case of accident, and is the ideal remedy for so many other distressing and painful ailments besides.

For example, it is guaranteed by Woodward & McPherson to relieve itching, bleeding and protruding piles, eczema, tetter, ulcers, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles and pimples, or money back.

In case of old running sores, no matter how long standing, a few poultices of San Cura Ointment will draw out the poison and leave them in such a thoroughly antiseptic condition that they will heal promptly.

We advise every reader to get a jar of San Cura Ointment today, and keep it ready for an accident or emergency that may happen. 30c, 50c and $1.50 a jar at Woodward & McPherson's on the money back plan.

San Cura Soap is delightful for shampooing, because it is full of antiseptic properties that banish the germs of dandruff and other impurities from the scalp. It removes pimples and blackheads, too. 25 cents a cake at Woodward & McPherson's. If your druggist does not have it send to Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.

A COMMUNICATION

October 17, 1923
To the Editor of the Progress:

My attention has been called to your editorial in the Clearfield Progress of October 16th, 1923, in which you say in part: "Counsel for the officials responsible for having the ballot printed advised that it was necessary under the state law for the Republican County Committee to meet and supply a candidate to fill the vacancy not later than Friday, September 12th, at 5:00 p. m. and in accordance with this instruction the County Chairman acted."

This could refer to no one but the writer as he is counsel for the County Commissioners upon whom by law the duty rests of having the official ballots printed. The statement is an error. The writer did not advise the County Commissioners that Friday, Sept. 12th, at 5:00 p. m. was the last day and hour to certify a successor to Grant H. Thompson as Republican candidate for County Controller. The advice was that the vacancy left in the Republican ticket by the death of Grant H. Thompson could be filled at any time before the election. If a successor to Mr. Thompson was certified to the County Commissioners before the official ballot was printed, the substituted name would appear upon the official ballot, but if the name was certified after the ballots were printed, it could be voted only by stickers prepared at the instance of the County and delivered with the ballots to the election officers.

The writer did not know then and does not know now when the ballots will be printed and hence could not have fixed any date as the last day and hour for certifying a substitute nomination.

TWO THINGS ABOUT A BANK'S ADVICE

A bank's friendly counsel in the conduct of a customer's business is valuable not only because it is expert, because it is disinterested. Expertness comes from a long experience with the varying problems and desires of many clients, while disinterested judgment is a natural attribute of a bank whose first aim is to render good service to its depositors.

The Clearfield National Bank is anxious at all times to contribute to the sound conduct of its customers' affairs by giving careful consideration to any problem which may be presented to it.

BEHIN HERE TODAY

Hope, daughter of Loring, was disappointed and her father offered a hundred thousand dollar reward for her return. Acting upon instructions from Hope's father, Loring leaves a hundred thousand dollars north of home in a special place.

Now go on with the story. On their arrival at the garage they found the touring car repaired and the party ready to start. Charlie, owning the Princess lightly from one car to the other, held her hand a moment in parting promise to meet them all the next Sunday at Mrs. Greenberg's for dinner, and then stood waving as they drove away.

With their departure, he shed his role of the moneyed Mr. Stern. Business demanded him now—just how soon he did not realize until he started to pay the garage-keeper for the use of the driver, and discovered that he had only a dollar and thirty-five cents left in his pocket.

However, he did not betray his dilemma; his training saved him. He still had his tongue, and it had extricated him in more embarrassing circumstances than this. Glibly, steadily he talked on to the garage-keeper, while trying to decide on his next move.

He surreptitiously explored his various pockets in the faint hope of finding some overlooked currency, and his fingers came in contact with a familiar object. Like a magic talisman, it restored his equanimity and courage.

It was an imitation merschaum pipe, and it—rather, its fellow—had for years provided Charlie with what he called, his "little graft." He always carried with him on his journey an assortment of these, retailing at about fifty cents apiece, and on his arrival in a "hick" town would set out with one of them in his pocket carefully wrapped up in an old silk handkerchief. In the office of the railroad hotel or at the main street pool parlor, he would start down his prospective victim—sometimes a lounging patron, sometimes the proprietor of the place—and strike up a conversation, mesmerizing him with his gift of language. Then at the psychological moment he would draw out his pipe, and handing it as tenderly as if it were some rare treasure, would offer it for inspection.

"My father put in thirty-two years coloring that town," he would say, firmly, poverty resistant. "I bought it with him when he came over from the other side, and gave it to me on his death-bed. I never thought that anything could make me part with it, but old Hard Luck is some persuader and I've made up my mind to let it go. Of course, if I had time to turn a deal, I could easy get as high as four or five hundred for a pipe like that; but these bum lungs of mine tell me that I can't afford to lose any time getting to Arizona." Here a hollow cough would shake his whole frame.

"So, if you know of anybody, friend, that's willing to come across with the twenty-five I need to make up my fare to Phoenix, the moon-shiner's there."

The listener generally fell for the bargain, and by the time the fraud was discovered and the constable set on his trail, Charlie would be many miles away.

Of course, with the garage-keeper, he had to vary his story, and adapt it to his character as canvasser for put-together-yourself furniture, but he did it so effectively that when he closed the transaction, he had paid all charges against him and had eleven dollars to boot. Then resolutely putting out of his mind the Princess, the garage-keeper Ranger everything that in connection with his study of the problem before him, he raced toward Long Island.

CHAPTER XVIII

It was just about the time that Charlie had gained from the Princess the clue which pointed to the Sanitarium that Hope and Kelsey in Bristol's high-powered car went crashing through the hedge and sweeping down the road.

Their plan had been to drive west, change the car at some garage, first driving it, and then proceed in an other less conspicuous one to New York.

But Kelsey noticed that she had headed east, which was well as it would lead the pursuit in that direction. Half a mile beyond the hospital, though, she turned into a narrow row lane, and he soon saw that by circuitous routes she was now making her way west. Neither of them spoke. Crouched over the wheel, Hope drove a valkyrie of a driver and for the time nothing more every fiber of her bent on that. And in the first instant of escape, Kelsey gave no thought to the dangers still before them.

Twilight was falling now. As they whirled on, following tangled and tortuous by-paths, he could no longer see ahead of him.

With a twist of the wheel Hope brought them out of a lane they had been following through the scrub-oak onto a more traveled highway, and ahead of them he saw the lights of a garage. She slowed down and stopped rubbing her numb hands.

"Run ahead and reconnoiter," she said, "and I will get ready to put the carburetor out of commission, if the coast is clear. Then, with another car, we will make a detour around that bend and strike into the main road."

He was already out of the car, and starting on his way.

Two or three minutes passed and then he came running back. "There's a car there," he panted. "There were men in it—Bristol's chauffeur. The garage men were gathered around it. We haven't a second to lose. They're after us."

She jumped into her seat, and slowed the machine sharply around. They whizzed down the road and back into the scrub-oak again. He heard shouts behind them, and the loud honking of a horn, with an an-

Grant Keen, of Chester Hill, who was arrested recently for violating the liquor law by local police officers, and since Chester Hill is not in Centre county, Judge Quigley, of Bellefonte, refused to hear the case until Keen was brought back to await trial before Judge James Finnegan of Chester Hill and furnished bail in the amount of $500 for his appearance at court.

He looked back again. "They're on us now," he said. "The wheels were hardly out of his mouth when a third car was in sight, and the pursuit of an engine and the pursuing car shot by them to draw up ahead in the middle of the road."

There was nothing for them but to stop. They could not hope to pass a car that narrow, and it was equally impossible to turn.

As the car passed them, Kelsey had made out that there were two men in it. One of them leaped over the side, and came running back.

Kelsey flexed his muscles and waited. The man hurrying toward them was a big burly fellow, but Kelsey was no lightweight himself. Armed or unarmed, he was ready for him and then he'd take on the other both at the same time for that matter.

The man held something in his hand, but it was not a gun.

"That you Dr. Bristol?" he said, coming close and speaking in a harsh, husky whisper. He halted, his jaw falling. "What, the doctor?"

Hope leaned forward. "I am Miss Copley," she said. "I wasn't quite sure of the doctor's directions."

"Oh? Miss Copley?" His truculence gave way to relief. He thrust a bulky envelope into her hand with out a word, and turned back to his own car.

"Better let us get a piece ahead," he muttered over his shoulder. "I've got an idea we're being trailed. We just shook off a couple of other cars."

He was gone. The car in front started whizzing. There was no time for question or comment, so time to express wonder at this strange incident. Hope had thrown the envelope into Kelsey's lap, and was once more driving at full speed.

The Morris Roadside and many automobiles were on it. "We have to cross here," she murmured. "Pray that our luck holds."

Kelsey sat tight while she drove down the highway for about a quarter of a mile. Motors passed them, going in both directions, but no one interrupted them. Then she turned off and soon they were in a tree-lined lane, where the ground was rougher than any over which they had passed.

They seemed to have thrown off the pursuit. Then the stillness was broken by the staccato coughing of a motor-cycle somewhere before them.

Before Kelsey realized her intention, she jerked the car to the left in so short a turn that they made it on two wheels.

He saw an open space before him. A tall stump seemed to rise out of the ground. She swerved frantically to avoid it, and they crashed into a tree. Blackness! He knew no more.

Hope thrown clear of the wreck struggled for her breath, and then rose uncertainly to her knees. A man was bending over her.

Captain Matthew Crough and Private Harry I. Land, of the Altoona state police, have returned to the former city after having arrested several Clearfield county residents for violating the liquor law. Joseph Romanski's home at Osceola Mills, was raided and two barrels of mash, a half gallon of moonshine and a still were taken. He furnished bail in the sum of $200. Benjamin Kozlowski, also of that place, was arrested and a still, a barrel of mash and one and one-half gallons of liquor taken. He was taken to jail in default of bail. These are only a couple of the numerous cases in Clearfield county that ought to be investigated.

Mrs. Laura J. Fleck, of South Philipsburg, was laid to rest Wednesday afternoon. Her death occurred Sunday afternoon. She was in her seventieth year.

H. J. Hoffman, of Philipsburg, is at DuBois, attending the funeral of his cousin, Lee Hoffman, who met death early Sunday morning along with two other DuBois residents, when the mine in which they had gone to look things over caved in on them. The other men were Daniel McQuown and Percy Britton. The men are well known in this section.

Hon. Clinton N. Howard, the little Giant of the Platform, gave an excellent lecture to a crowded house at the Methodist church Tuesday evening when he spoke on the subject "Case Through the Prince of Peace."

Frank Magloski, of Houtdale, who committed suicide by hanging himself to a bedpost, was well known throughout this section by the young people. He was but 24 years of age. And it is thought he was suffering from mental trouble when the terrible affair took place late Sunday night or early Monday.

PETERS—YOUNG

At the Methodist parsonage at Woodland, Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, Mr. Rex Peters and Miss Maud Young, both of Mifflinsburg, were united in marriage by Rev. G. M. B. Reidell. They were attended by Clair Young of Clearfield, a brother of the bride and his wife. The happy couple will reside at Woodland.

A WORD FROM A DEFEATED CANDIDATE

To the 1750 friends, neighbors and citizens of Clearfield county who supported me in the September Primary Election for the nomination of County Commissioner I wish to express my deepest appreciation for the interest shown in my campaign, I respect your friendship and value your confidence.

Owing to the fact that there exists some dissatisfaction as to the result of the nomination on the Republican ticket for Commissioners, some of my friends have requested that I continue the fight as an independent nominee which request I must refuse. I desire to say in support of my refusal that I cannot do otherwise with fairness to myself and the Republican Party.

My position in the Republican party is not to either rule or ruin but to be governed by election results. The Republican ticket consisted of ten candidates for Commissioner, for office we all made an honest fight looking for votes wherever they could be found, all had the same chance and all fought under the same rule and the voters decided under the Primary Election law of Pennsylvania who should be their choice and as one defeated candidate I am willing to manfully abide by the voters' decision.

While it is true the two nominees on the Republican ticket did not receive a majority vote of all votes cast we must remember they were not required to do so under the law and it would be most impossible for any two men to receive a majority of all votes cast with ten (10) reasonably good men in the field. If such a feat could be accomplished then in such a case the candidates should not be required to go on the November ballot and would be elected by acclamation.

I hereby express my opinion in reply to my friends who would have me make an independent effort and a reminder to convince the good citizenship of Clearfield County the necessity of standing firmly behind both the Republican and Democratic tickets as Nominated.

Very truly yours for Republican Success in November.
GEO. W. FOX,
Smith Mills, Pa.

WRIGHT—PUMMINGS

Alfred H. Wright and Miss Grace Pummings were united in the bonds of matrimony at the West Side M. E. church on Saturday evening Oct. 13th, at seven o'clock by the pastor, William L. Armstrong. They were accompanied by the bride's mother Mrs. Maggie Pummings and Mrs. Annie E. Rainey of Clearfield, Pa.

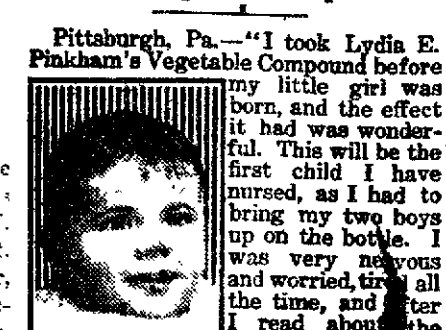

The bride's home is at Olanta, Pa. and the groom is located at Kennecott, Pa., where he is employed as station agent for the N. Y. C. railroad. It is here that the happy young couple will locate. After the ceremony they departed for Olanta, where a joyous reception was awaiting them amid expressions of congratulations and well wishes.

HEALTH HINTS

Tuberculosis Society

HEALTH HANDBOOK BEING DISTRIBUTED IN STATE

The Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society has received the first lot of the new health handbook. The handbook is a small, handy volume, which will be distributed to all schools and other organizations which have been asked to receive it.

We have additional copies of this handbook for teachers. Special prices are quoted for quantities. Address the secretary, 10 South Fifth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

QUARTERLY MEETING

The regular quarterly meeting of the society will be held on Friday, October 20th at the Dining Hall, Clearfield at 7 P. M. The program will consist of a lecture on "The Tuberculosis Problem," by Dr. Louis Dublin, followed by a discussion of the "Health Handbook." The meeting will be held in the dining hall, Clearfield at 7 P. M.

"MISS ROSIE CHECKS"

We can not hold but a moment more of this little health play presented through the efforts of our society at the Thursday morning session of the Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society. The play, "Miss Rosie Checks," was a well-received and many teachers expressed the desire for material that they could use in the same way with their own pupils. This will be sent to anyone desiring same by addressing Mrs. Philip Reed, Clearfield. Mrs. Reed has just sent out the health handbook material to those teachers who signed up for this literature. If you have not received yours and want some write her at once.

THIS MEANS YOU. SCHOOLS TO BE PROVIDED

At the recent meeting of the Executive Committee it was decided to purchase scales for the schools of Clearfield County for the purpose of weighing the children. The scales will be provided for the schools of the county. We hope to be able to transfer the scales from one school to another in the rural districts and in time have enough to afford an opportunity to get the weight and height of every child during the school year or more times.

REAL LIFE SAVING SERVICE

Dr. Louis Dublin, Statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., says the following: "We are especially optimistic for the future because of the amazing reduction in the death rate from tuberculosis which is occurring throughout the world. Since 1911, the disease has declined 50 per cent among those insured in the Metropolitan and almost as much in the general population of a number of progressive cities. The development of a well conceived campaign against all those conditions which reflect personal hygiene and the general care and use of the human body can be made to show just as good results as we are able to show from our campaign against tuberculosis." Isn't the effort worth while?

Spelling Game. Print the alphabet on two and one-half inch squares of cardboard, duplicating common letters, and distribute among children. Write on board the name of any fruit, as orange. As soon as the word is written children holding o-r-a-n-g-e come out and stand in order—each holding card in front. Word is then spelled by children forming it, also by others. Another child then calls "Come here, Orange" and players run to their seats. After five or six words, teacher may say "Stand out, Orange" and the children run out in correct order. All words may be reviewed in this way.

CRUSADE AMMUNITION

In Wayne County (Mich.) schools a variety of devices for stimulating the interest of the pupils in the Crusade work has been developed by the teachers. In one school, the pupils learn two health songs every month; in another, the boys and girls have a contest, the losers to give the winners a picnic. Many schools are conducting poster contests or making health books. In one school a corner in several rooms was devoted to health work. Posters worked out from many cards were a feature of this display. The children had to find pictures of portions of "The Fishbone Book" that would equal so many calories, and then arrange these artistically.

The presentation of health plays is a device which never fails to appeal to the entire community. The children who take part in the play never forget the health lesson they are trying to "put over" and even though they may not be finished actors, the play is of lasting benefit to the participants. Frequently the interest of the parents and friends of the children can be stirred in such fashion that lackadaisical school trustees find themselves "prowled into action." The cooperation of the local newspapers, too, will feature the plays and thus draw the attention of the community to the health work that is being done in the school.

AT THE COUNTY FAIR

That public interest in better health has grown tremendously during the past five years was certainly evidenced by the attractive booth maintained at the Fair by Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society.

Four years ago the local organization had a booth for the first time. It taught more about the fight against tuberculosis and to give children and adults a chance to find out if they were up to normal in weight, height, etc. Each year has seen the interest grow and last week Miss Atwood of the society assisted by Miss Phillips of the State Department of Health weighed and measured between 500 and 600 children from all sections of the county. It would be difficult to guess how many parents also had their measures taken and were anxious to know if they were up to normal or not.

The Tuberculosis Society is surely doing an active service throughout the county and each year is broadening its scope. Of course each of us who helps this worthy work by buying the little seals at Xmas time does his or her bit toward making it possible. Health literature was distributed to several thousand visitors to the booth.

Can Pay Too High for Peace.

We love peace as we all should; but not peace at any price. There is a peace that is more destructive than the manifold of little men. The war is destructive of his material body. Chains are worse than bayonets. Douglas Jerrold.

NEW CLINIC NURSE

It is a pleasure to be able to announce that the State Department of Health, Tuberculosis Division, has appointed Miss Florence Gray as dispensary nurse to cover the Clearfield district vacated last June by the resignation of Miss Lindgren. We all know this means a great deal in the success of our activities as the local dispensary service with the State nurse have always cooperated in a wonderful manner. We hope that you will meet Miss Gray when she comes into your community and advise her of any tuberculous cases you may know of.

GREETINGS

With this first issue of our little health news medium for the season of 1923-24 we extend a greeting to each and everyone who is now interested or whom we can now get interested in our welfare work. It shall be our purpose as last year to advise you of the progress of our work, suggest aids and means of accomplishing greater things; notify you of meetings of workers; in brief, to be of service to the members and friends of the Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society wherever we may or can. We hope you will read every word of every issue we can produce and suggest that you put it in your pocket and read it when you have anything of interest in your town or in your school write us about it, for we can thus make our little sheet one of county-wide interest. The number of issues will of course be limited as last year by the funds available and we must depend upon a successful Xmas seal sale for this as for all our various efforts. Of this we will have more to say ere long for the Xmas season will be here before we know it and we must enlist the services of everyone at that time.

DAVE HARMAN HERE

Famous Band to Appear at Fairview Park.

One announcement of the season at least is destined to be welcomed with great enthusiasm and that is the forthcoming appearance at Fairview Park, Orosola Mills on Thursday evening, October 18, 1923 of Dave Harman and his famous orchestra under the auspices of the Triangle Amusement Company. No organization now on tour in America has met with such widespread and brilliant success as has come to this famous orchestra. Each member is a star musician and the unity with which the orchestra plays its dance music has never been excelled by any organization in existence.

Their appearance this evening at Fairview Park is being eagerly anticipated by all who appreciate dance music of the highest type and it is safe to predict that they will be greeted by a record breaking throng.

Save the Repair Bill.

When the bells refuse to respond do not send for the electrician before you examine the battery. Perhaps the water has evaporated; in that case a little water added will repair the bell. If this does not prove satisfactory empty the battery and refill with water, then add salt ammoniac, allowing a quarter pound to one quart of water. The probabilities are you will save the repair bill.

AND HER VIOLIN!

What could be the bond between them? Driven like ships bound for the Port of Prince and Pauper. Was it just the magic of her melody that came like a shaft of light to these people in the shadows? Or was it something else?

Music? Magic? Love? Perhaps a power greater still! Whatever it is, it echoes through this picture, a song of the soul that will linger in your memory for days to come.

FAMED VIOLINIST WILL APPEAR IN PHILIPSBURG

Estelle Gray-Lhevinne, Adored American Artist, at the Rowland Theatre on Oct. 25th.

Estelle Gray-Lhevinne, the adored American violinist, who is being acclaimed by her audiences throughout the world as the greatest living woman violinist, will appear at the Rowland Theatre, Philipshurg, Pa. on Thursday evening, Oct. 25th, at 8:15 o'clock.

Madame Gray-Lhevinne began her most important and closely booked season of her unique career on September 24th, and from that date to December 17 she will fill sixty-seven concert engagements. It was only thru extraordinary efforts that Madame Gray-Lhevinne was persuaded to give a concert in Philipshurg which is the smallest town in which she will appear this season. The concert will be given under the auspices of the community league.

Madame Gray-Lhevinne is in the first flush of her vivid charm. Many cities are having a group of concerts by her; for instance, she is opening the Cleveland Musical Association of Master Musicians this fall, and is doing the same at the Carnegie Music Hall in Pittsburgh. Many of the leading music artists' series, which had Kreisler as their violin feature last year are being opened by Madame Gray-Lhevinne.

The Chicago Herald says, "Here is a violinist who can find a smile in the classics and make you smile with her." It really takes a supreme artist a past master of platform art, one with the lifetime of public knowledge to be able to have the dramatic hold Gray-Lhevinne has on her audiences, with only a violin and bow (plus personality) to sway the moods from tears to laughter—from breathless climaxes to restful repose. Gray-Lhevinne is an artist from the crown of her head to the tips of her dainty feet, so perfect is her art, the music seems to fairly flow from her body through the violin to your heart. At times it seems hardly possible that any human being could produce such wondrous sounds as those issuing from Gray-Lhevinne's old Cremona and it seems as though she is the soul of the fiddle breathed into it by its master maker many, many years ago. The old fiddle upon which Madame Gray-Lhevinne bows was made by Corelli in 1715. It has been owned by Pergolesi, Mozart, Maria Theresa, Paganini and others. The famous old Cremona has a history as the most valuable violin in the world. Its tones are lucious and its penetrating sweetness penetrates the deepest corners of the largest auditorium.

Madame Gray-Lhevinne and her old Cremona has appeared in hundreds of concerts in America and in Europe. Wherever she has played, she has won the hearts of her audiences, regardless of whether they were "highbrow" music lovers or just ordinary lovers of entertainment that reaches the soul and heart. In other words Gray-Lhevinne plays for all of her audience.

You cannot afford to miss this wonderful opportunity of a lifetime, to hear this world-famed artist at the Rowland Theatre on Oct. 25th. The

BIGGEST QUESTION TODAY IS "WHAT WILL COOLIDGE DO WHEN GOVERNORS MEET TO DISCUSS PROHIBITION LAW"

Washington, Oct. 18.—How President Coolidge expects to clamp the dry lid on America was a matter of speculation today in political circles.

When the President faces the governors in conference on law enforcement Saturday, he is expected to outline a program to meet a situation declared by the late President Harding as a "national scandal."

Unless Mr. Coolidge presents a specific method of meeting the flagrant violation of the Volstead act, some fear the dry forces will swing in behind Governor Pinchot who hung a challenge to the President at the Citizens' Prohibition Conference on Sunday.

The President's advisors are urging him to strike a happy medium between the extreme views on prohibition advocated by Governor Pinchot and former Governor Allen of Kansas, who advocated governors of wet states proclaiming martial law if the means of enforcement fails.

HOW TO OWN YOUR HOME

Write to Department of Commerce, Superintendent of Documents and for Five Cents They Will Send You a Very Interesting Little Booklet

IT IS A GOOD GUIDE FOR HOME SEEKERS

Pennsylvania was one of 18 states to show an increase in the percentage of families owning their own homes, according to "How to Own Your Home," an official handbook just issued for prospective home owners by the Department of Commerce. In 1900, the manual shows the number of families owning their homes compared 41 per cent and this increased to 45.2 in 1920.

Pennsylvania's home ownership record also led that of the Middle Atlantic group, made up of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the group average being 37.2 families out of 1,000, the tables show, but her average was slightly lower than that for the entire country, with 42.2 families listed as home owners in 1920 out of each 1,000, as against 45.6 out of each 1,000 for the United States.

Secretary Hoover, in the foreword to the handbook, points out that in buying or building a home a man must not only carry out the transaction of financing and buying a building, but must determine the location with respect to schools, work and the neighborhood. "How to Own Your Home," which was prepared by John M. Gries and James S. Taylor, of the Division of Building and Housing, accordingly aims to "describe the steps and precautions to be taken in carrying out the transaction with the least possible risk and the best assurance of final satisfaction."

"Although most men and women who buy a house have never done it before and are usually unskilled, as people generally are in the things they do but once or twice in a lifetime the prospective home owner who carefully considers the real needs of his family and his ability to pay, and who checks his own judgment by consulting experienced persons, may go ahead with full confidence. He need not be frightened by the mistakes of heedless persons who have been carried away by some novel feature and soaked into a bad bargain, or who have tried to buy beyond their means. While some risks are involved, as is usually the case in obtaining anything worth while, the danger of failure is relatively small when weighed against the advantages of an owned home."

"Today, in the period of post-war recovery, when our national productivity is increasing, we have the opportunity to make definite progress in the right direction. However, the development of the automobile has given a great impulse to suburban life and an increasing possibility of home ownership. Happily a large section of the people are awake to the problem and an increasing number of business groups have publicly acknowledged their responsibility and interest in it. They realize that unless they build barriers that may encompass a man determined to own his own home are hindrances to good community spirit and to good business."

In "How to Own Your Home" emphasis is laid at the outset on the importance of the decision the authors likening this step to purchase in a business partnership. "A family that has saved up enough to make a first payment and has paid its rent regularly when due has given good evidence of its ability to pay for and own a home," say the authors. "Homes are usually bought from savings. Habits of saving are best begun in early childhood; but adults who have not already begun to save toward buying a home should start at once. Many find the buying of a home the largest investment they ever made. But lack of experience should deter no one."

The question of how much to pay for a home is thoroughly discussed in the Department of Commerce handbook which says that "The amount to be spent on a home can be determined wisely only by carefully checking over the family's needs and its expenses. The pamphlet declares that "building and loan associations will, in many cases, prove the best means of financing a home, for they are often able to loan as much as 70 to 80 per cent of the real value of a home, which is generally above the limit allowed by law for savings banks and insurance companies."

In the matter of choosing suitable location for a home, "How to Own Your Home" lists as factors to be considered: Low or high land values; transportation facilities; protection, including fire and police; character of neighborhood; accessibility of schools and playgrounds; shade trees, character of soil and necessity for grading, filling or draining. What to look for in house plans and insistence on good quality of construction are included in the topics covered by the manual.

"In addition to payments on principal and interest of loans on a home," it says, "allowance must be made for some or all of the following expenses: Renewals and repairs; property tax and special assessments; insurance; water tax or rent; accessories and improvements."

Final revisions were made today in the impeachment indictment against Governor J. C. Walton, which will probably be presented to the lower house of the legislature tomorrow. The House adjourned today awaiting completion of the report against the governor.

Scientists were confident purely earthly explanation will be found in the messages from those on the other side, which Mrs. Stewart produced in broad daylight on a Long Island 1000 garden on Tuesday.

SAXON PRESIDENT DEFIES DICTATOR GENERAL MUELLER

Stands Ready to Fight for the Dictatorship of Proletariat, He Tells Members of the Diet.

INDICATES COURSE

Berlin, Oct. 18.—The radical President of Saxony, Dr. Zeigner today openly defied the demand of the federal dictator of the Dresden district, General Mueller.

He opposed answering the General's letter, demanding that the Saxony cabinet disavow the fiery speeches of the Saxony Finance Minister, Boettcher.

Zeigner declared in the Diet today he was ready to fight for a dictatorship of the Proletariat.

Zeigner read the letter from General Mueller, demanding disavowal to the Diet, asserting he objected to such demand as interference with his Government. Although he swore allegiance to the constitution, he said the rights guaranteed by the constitution had been broken, and that he was preparing for a struggle, if necessary.

Mueller's letter, while making no definite threats, formally demanded a reply by eleven o'clock today.

The Saxony Communist's path was indicated by Boettcher when he advocated selling the state forests to buy bread for the hungry people. Zeigner also advocated selling the royal jewels of the old monarchistic government of Saxony to America in order to obtain money to stimulate production in factories. Members of the Thuringian Government also partly Communists, advocated installation of Ruhr foreign trade methods but on sound principals.

Emergency efforts to relieve acute hunger among the population by distribution of food appeared effective in Berlin. The Bourse, frightened by Tuesday's demonstration, furnished large supplies and several trillion marks for the workers.

Berlin, Oct. 18.—The Minister of Defense this evening instructed General Mueller in Dresden to use police only in scattering the faction Communists, "red hundreds."

The order was interpreted as a complete breakdown by the federal government, which previously threatened to use the army. Mueller was instructed to hold his troops in reserve.

The order came only after several hours' debate between government leaders and a section of the cabinet, which was understood to favor letting Mueller go ahead in using the army to enforce federal supremacy in Saxony.

Chancellor Stresemann, however, insisted on a moderate course.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. James, who have been spending the past month with E. J. Walther and family, left on Wednesday morning for Washington, D. C. where they will visit for some time. Mr. James has been located at Denver, Col. for several years but having recently disposed of his home there, is visiting among friends in the East, before locating elsewhere.

CHICAGOANS FORM SOCIETY TO CARRY ON GEORGE'S PLAN

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 18.—Lloyd George's American tour today began to bear fruit in the organization here of a movement to carry on, after he departs, the campaign he set in motion for American participation in a practical businesslike settlement of the world's troubles.

One of the first efforts by those who want to take advantage of such sentiments as Lloyd George has created in this country for American participation in Europe will be directed toward getting the Coolidge administration at Washington more actively interested.

The first step in this, as Lloyd George has pointed out in practically all the speeches he has made, is to settle the reparations problem. He has repeatedly told his audiences that the Hughes Commission plan is the only sensible way to arrive at a reparations settlement.

In a speech last night he gave his audience a detailed explanation of reparations, told them how the prosperity of the United States depended on a settlement, told them how the French policy would never succeed, declared that if France and Belgium would make the Hughes plan and it was shown that Germany could pay and would not, "Then we can go together to force her to pay."

Edison Thinks Ford Is Better As Manufacturer Than As Our President

New York, Oct. 17.—Thomas A. Edison, in one of the first interviews he ever granted to newspaper men, sneered today of the presidential possibilities of his friend Henry Ford, and declared it "would spoil a good man, if the nation sent Ford to the White House."

Mr. Edison expressed the opinion that the automobile manufacturer was more valuable to the nation as a manufacturer than as a president.

Talking to the prediction of Chas. Steinmetz, the inventor, that electricity eventually would reduce the working day to four hours, with this objection, Mr. Edison agreed. Mr. Edison, however, was not sure that the four hour day would be a good thing for the nation. He expressed fears that two large leisure classes would be created and this would have a bad effect, especially on the young.

Within a very few years, he said, coal would be transformed into electrical energy at the mine and distributed throughout the country by high power transmission lines, doing more quickly and efficiently the work now performed by the fuel after long hauling and much handling. Transportation costs and various other charges not connected with getting fuel energy to the consumers would thus be obviated.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. William Rol and at their home on Daisy street, 815 Second Avenue on Monday, October 15th.

Mrs. P. W. Rolley of Karthaus shopped in town today.

HAS A PUBLIC LIBRARY ANY PART IN AMERICANIZATION?

At first thought it may appear that there is no Americanization problem in Clearfield. There is. It is not serious but it is there. Fortunately we have a very high class of foreign residents and they rapidly assimilate American ideas and ideals. In fact they hunger for them. A library can and will play a leading part in completing their education in Americanization. Children of non-English speaking parents use it and carry English books into the houses of foreign-born parents. American books are the apostle of American ideals. Foreigners who can read English use it, and from the books they borrow gain an understanding of what Americanism really is. And those of us who call ourselves Americans have a lot to learn too. In many cases we can learn with them.

By supplying good, healthy reading matter, it does much to curtail the reading of vicious and injurious books by boys. The boys of today are the citizens of tomorrow whether they be born of American parents or not. We must take care of the future.

Rotary Club Members Practice High Tenor Ditties For Banquet

There was a fine attendance at last night's meeting of the Clearfield Rotary Club. The meeting was given over to planning for next week's entertainment of the ladies and the teachers of the Clearfield public schools.

Chairman Kurtz, of the Library Committee again boosted the library proposition, urging all Rotarians to assist in the movement by helping to combat what the speaker styled unfair argument and propaganda against the library.

A. G. Bartholomew, who is arranging to have his friend Lt. Oakley Kelly, of Gales City, come to Clearfield to address Rotary reported that Lt. Kelly was unable to get home last week, but he felt sure he would be on hand for next week's meeting.

Rotan Joseph Apple, President of Hood College, notified President Stewart that it would be impossible for him to come to Clearfield next Wednesday evening as he was celebrating an anniversary of his college on that day.

The President announced that another top-notch speaker would be on hand for ladies' night. Announcement of the meeting of the Lakes to the Sea Highway Association at Clearfield today was made after which all hands rapped up their bar room time on "Sweet Adeline" and a few other familiar ditties they expect to sing at the ladies next Wednesday evening.

MOTOR BOATS SAID TO BE DRIVEN OUT TO SEA BY GALE

New York, Oct. 18.—Five motor boats carrying passengers were caught in a gale off Coney Island today and a few reports were being blown out of a disabled.

Distress signals were seen flying from the boats by watchers along the shore and calls for assistance were relayed to police boats cruising the harbor. Tugs from the Brooklyn navy yards were dispatched to the rescue.

JOHN W. WRIGLEY, WORTHY CITIZEN, DIED LAST NIGHT

John W. Wrigley, one of Clearfield's leading citizens, who has been critically ill the past week passed away at the Clearfield Hospital last evening at 11:45 o'clock.

The passing of Mr. Wrigley removes a man who has been a big factor in the development of the central part of Pennsylvania and a moving spirit in Clearfield county affairs.

Funeral services will be held from his late home on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Wallacetown Farmer Is Struck By Train; Flung On Pilot

Eri Gilpatrick, a prominent farmer living on the old rail between Bigler and Wallacetown at a point near the two railroad crossings on that road, both of which were eliminated by building of the new state road, is lying seriously hurt at the Cottage State Hospital at Phillipsburg with head injuries, as a result of being struck by a train last evening.

Mr. Gilpatrick spent the afternoon in Phillipsburg and on returning home in the evening in a Ford coupe he was struck by the N. Y. C. train enroute to Williamsport. The Ford was carried two hundred feet and smashed to kindling while Mr. Gilpatrick was flung onto the pilot of the engine and was still there when the train was brought to a stop. His son, Nello, witnessed the accident, trying in vain to inform his father of the approaching train, but was unable to make him hear because of construction of the car. At a late hour this afternoon his condition is said to be serious, though not critical.

WILL SPEAK TO PHILIPSBURG ROTARY CLUB

William P. Sheeder, of Clearfield will be the speaker before the Phillipsburg Rotary Club next Thursday evening. On this occasion the club will observe "Retailers' night" and the Phillipsburg club has made an excellent selection in "Our Bill" as he knows the retail business from the beginning to the end.

Sec'y Slomp Popular With All Parties at Capital

By FRASER EDWARDS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 18.—Some men succeed by efficiency. Affability in "strong hold" of others. But C. Bascom Slomp, secretary to the President, combines the two. The attributes that made him popular in Congress are bringing success in the White House offices.

This apparently easy-going Virginia mountaineer is an apostle of the clean desk. How he does it no one knows. He seems never to hurry, yet he is always swiftly signing correspondence or reading memoranda and memos and shunting them along to President Coolidge. And all the while in a room full of people.

An army of callers march through his office daily. His exacting duties take every minute of his time, but it is never too busy to see anyone who calls. And he knows how to help them feel at home and how to send them away with a smile.

Ambassadors, Senators, politicians and folks from the "forks of the creek"—all look alike to the affable Slomp. He speaks all languages—their native tongue. He has reduced efficiency to a science and affability to an art.

Slomp is a lightning-change artist, yet he requires no make-up but a true serge suit. All see the same tall-slender, slightly stoop-shouldered Slomp, with thin iron-gray hair, whose large, round, kindly brown eyes gaze squarely at you from an oval face-complexioned face. The difference lies in his manner.

Addressed in Own Language.
With a brilliance that always led to his companions.

Captain Kenneth Barrie, of Clearfield High School grid football team, was out of last Saturday's game to injuries for the second time in two seasons he has been a member of the varsity. He is at present in a quarterback, and by light of duty, when he did not dare force his injury, he back again and will enter Saturday's game with Ridgway in fair condition. His good form was brought out Wednesday night when he scored three touchdowns against the regulars.

Lee Hills, a former pupil of Bushfield Penn State each, is a returning Coach Reed in correcting some faults of line play. The scrimmage last night showed improved defense and that with the solid co-operation of such backs as Morris, Dale, Barrie, Wilson, and Mitchell will present a very well balanced eleven Saturday.

Mr. Hyde of the Clearfield Lumber and Lumber Company has presented the High School with a fine pair of tool posts, which will be in readiness for Saturday's game. Mr. Hyde says he goal post will be of great expensive power to the invader's team, but the post Clearfield falls will act as a magnetic force to the Clearfield team.

Lawrence Mow and William Leisinger motored to Ann Arbor today for the week-end and to attend a football game between the University and Ohio State.

SCIENCE AND MAGIC IN CONTROVERSY GROWING OUT OF CHICAGO MEDIUM'S PERFORMANCE AT LONG ISLAND HOME

New York, Oct. 18.—The question of whether science is more clever than the magicians was being tested here today.

While Mrs. Joseph K. Stewart, who claims to be a medium between the mundane world and the spirit world, maintains a spiritual reception cell in her hotel room here and science has examined her rose petal communication in an attempt to determine "How does she do it?"

There was little tendency on the part of the hard-headed men of science to consider the hypothesis that Mrs. Stewart, who is pastor of the First Independent Church of Cleveland, O., really can obtain messages from the dead.

Scientists were confident purely earthly explanation will be found in the messages from those on the other side, which Mrs. Stewart produced in broad daylight on a Long Island 1000 garden on Tuesday.

Way Back in 1490

Didn't know they thought of airplanes back in 1490? Well, they did. William P. Garber, who makes the models for the Smithsonian Institute, is shown with a model made from plans drawn by Leonardo da Vinci in 1490. So far as is known these plans were the first practical step towards mechanical flight.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

More than $1,000,000,000 is lost in this country each year through headless speculation and failures, according to George E. Lloyd, savings director for the Third Federal Reserve district. This amounts to about $10 loss for each person, or about $45 on the average for each family.

Despite the fact that some Methodist pastors in the country as well as pastors of other churches have permitted members of the Ku Klux Klan to visit their churches during services and present them with envelopes containing money, even going so far as to commend the Klan in their movements, the Rev. Dr. Francis J. McConnell, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church of Pittsburgh, is strongly opposed to the organization.

In a letter to a friend in Middletown, N. Y., this bishop says: "I regard the Klan as anti-American and undemocratic and anti-Christian in its methods, no matter how high its ideas may be."

Passing during the trial of liquor cases Tuesday at Scranton, Federal Judge C. B. Witmer called attention to the 400 cases of alleged violations of the prohibition law before the federal courts of Pennsylvania, and declared that Gov. Pinchot, "instead of calling on others to take personal supervision of liquor violations, should set an example by using the state courts to punish the violators."

Such a course, Judge Witmer said, not only would convince the people of the governor's sincerity in his proclaimed efforts to wipe out liquor violations, but also would greatly assist the federal government in the orderly and efficient administration of the law.

There are 13,002,427 registered motor cars in the United States, according to Washington statistics. About one per cent of the drivers of same will stop for a pedestrian at a crossing. Why wonder at the rapid pace of American generally? They have to make it snappy to save their lives.

People of the Barrett and downriver sections could have secured a lot of cheap feeds the past summer had we run across this recipe a little sooner:

A locust cookbook has been issued by the Bureau of Agriculture of the Philippine Islands. To prepare the locusts they are poured alive into boiling water and then spread out on shallow trays to dry. Wings, legs and tip of body are trimmed off and they are then rinsed in water. Small locusts need not have legs removed as they are tender. One recipe is as follows: Boil locusts for about ten minutes in sufficient vinegar, salt, and crushed garlic, and when the vinegar dries off fry in lard.

When can a man "read and write English"? The question is a grave one in New York, where a recent constitutional amendment makes literacy to this extent a qualification for voters who wish to cast their ballot for the first time. Is it sufficient to be able to re-rail the words on the first page of a grammar-school primer—"I have a dog—mamma, see my dog—my dog can see me"—and having written them, read them aloud to the judge-electors? Or must a fledgling voter spell through a sonorous paragraph from the Declaration of Independence and write an essay on the New York election laws? The case has gone to New York's court of final resort, carried there by the state attorney general.

Those having the misfortune to suffer from backache, urinary disorders, dropsical swellings, rheumatic pains, or other kidney and bladder disorders, will read with gratification this encouraging statement by a Clearfield man.

C. D. Kline, 214 Locust St., says: "The constant jarring while driving cars weakened my kidneys and I had backache. It I worked in a bent position I got a sharp pain in my back and it was hard to straighten. Mornings the muscles in my back were too cramped in action and I had to get up during the night to pass the secretions. Several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got at Stewart's Drug Store, drove away the backache and helped my kidneys a lot." Get at all dealers. Porter-McBurn Co., Mfrs. Buffalo, N. Y.

Russians Honor Americans Who Died In Relief Administration's Service During War Against Great Famine

EXTERIOR BLANDY SCHOOL AT UFA

INTERIOR BLANDY CHILDRENS HOME AT UFA

Harold F. Blandy of New York, the American Relief Administration worker who died in Ufa, Russia, from typhus contracted while working among the disease-stricken victims of the Great Famine, has been honored by having two Russian institutions named for him.

At Ufa the Blandy Memorial Hospital is ministering to the needs of the population and the name of the young American martyr is held in sacred remembrance. On the anniversary of his death, ten thousand people of the city knelt bareheaded in the square on which the hospital faces, while the Russian archbishop of the Ufa Diocese celebrated a requiem mass. High officials and church dignitaries marched in the procession and they were followed by long lines of peasants and workers who had been saved from starvation by the help of America. There were children in the procession who had eaten in the A. R. A. kitchens; men and women to whom the American gift of corn had come as manna from heaven; grateful patients whose diseases had been healed with medicaments which American charity had brought to Russia; mothers whose children had been born within the walls of the hospital whose doors would have been closed to them had it not been for A. R. A. support.

And out in the city of Miass, not far from Ekaterinburg on the edge of Siberia, there is the Blandy Memorial Home for Children where famine-waited and orphaned are still being fed from the rations that the A. R. A. left behind.

Nor is Harold Blandy the only American to be so honored. At Simbirsk, where Philip B. Sheldis mysteriously disappeared, and is admittedly dead, there is a Sheldis Memorial Home, the finest children's home in the entire city, a model in its equipment and management, whose juvenile inmates sleep between A. R. A. sheets, under American blankets, bathe with A. R. A. soap, dry themselves on A. R. A. towels, wear A. R. A. shoes and when they are sick, take A. R. A. medicines, as do the children in thousands of other government institutions throughout the Soviet Republic.

The A. R. A. has withdrawn from Russia but what America did there will not be forgotten. The relief ended because the famine which the far off American people had fought so successfully was at an end. Russia is no longer starving, but the masses of her people know where their salvation came from, and they are grateful.

Baby's Eyes

In Budapest recently a mother dropped into the eyes of a newborn baby a 10 per cent solution of silver nitrate instead of the one per cent solution that is obligatory there. The result, of course, was destruction of the eyeball and total blindness. To prevent the recurrence of such a disaster the highest sanitary authorities are ordering that a one per cent solution of silver nitrate be used instead of the silver nitrate for the purpose that it is impossible to make a stronger solution of the former.

Chinese Like Ulsters

Ulster overcoats have become popular with the Chinese in Manchuria. The weather class of Chinese always wear long outer garments of silk, which are easily damaged by rain or snow, and the long ulster, besides affording warmth, protects the silk clothing underneath.

Times for Gratitude

There is much greatness of mind in the owning of a good turn as in the doing of it; and we must no more force a requital out of season than be wanting in it.—Seneca.

Just Imagine!

Among the wives of the English coal miners there exists the curious custom of putting small bits of coal among the clean sheets on their beds. They believe that if they neglect to do this their husbands will meet with an accident before the sheets are changed.

Philosophy of Business. Over the door of their national bank, the Chinese have carved an adage which reads: "If you employ a man, trust him. If you cannot trust him, do not employ him." That is a good philosophy to apply to friendship as well as to business.—Delineator.

PLENTY OF OUR MILK MAKES STALWART KIDDIES

There is everything in the milk that will make for the proper growth of muscle. Then, too, every drop of our milk goes through the pasteurization process and this eliminates any possibility of disease.

Investigations by eminent scientists that kiddies who have been fed on pasteurized milk have shown better growth, have had keener minds and have had fewer of the usual "kiddies" diseases simply because their little bodies have been built up to a point where they could resist the onslaughts of disease.

Give the kiddies plenty of our pasteurized milk.

"Such ado about nothing" would make a proper title for the little controversy over the way and wherefore of holding the Republican County Committee meeting here on Friday of last week.

The County Selector says he has been misquoted. Chairman Edwards probably took from the information he gained about the matter that the convention would have to be held quickly in order to get the same on the ballot.

The matter is of so little importance and of such little consequence that any further discussion of it by either party would be absurd.

Clearfield needs men. Men of the type and stripe who will be willing to shoulder a little more community responsibility.

We are well aware that many of our citizens will take exception to the above statement. Clearfield does things and has a record for putting across about everything that comes along that is worth while.

But we cannot stand on our record. An air in the air never produces a boat. An engine under full steam never hauls a train unless there is an engineer at the throttle.

The fact of the matter is that Clearfield is falling down on the things that she is tackling lately. Do not ask us to state cases. That would indeed be humiliating.

If we are to liken this town to a train, let it be said that there are too few engineers. The great majority of our people have been assuming the "let George do it" pose and, as a result, nearly every community effort in the town has settled down on the shoulders of a few "riding horses" who, bless their souls, will not let the train get a going.

Now too easily find excuses for not taking up community work. The executive boards of worth-while propositions are suffering from a lack of membership.

Some call will go out for service. Let those who are asked to answer favorably. They will find joy in a service to their community.

The signs of the times indicate that the so-called Independent party has become a "good angel."

Joe and Sam are seen out on the highways and byways quite frequently and it is said that they are working for the incorporation of the town.

In addition to this indication that the shrews of war are or are to be, the publicity agent is indulging in advertising a considerable extent.

This advertisement, in the nature of an attack on the old board who spent money to attack the old board. That was very ably done during the primary campaign.

What the voters want to know is what is offered as a substitute for the old board. They must be convinced that a change is worth while.

What particular thing or things can be mentioned about Messrs. Boyce and McCracken as commissioners' qualifications? Have they been successful business administrators and in what way have they succeeded? These questions must be answered.

The voters also want to know what relationship will exist between Messrs. Boyce and McCracken and Joe in case they are elected.

AMERICAN TIN PLATE FOR THE WORLD

Eighty countries and colonies are now buying this comparatively new product of the American factory. Our exports of the plate in last decade $250,000,000 against $20,000,000 in preceding decade.

Announcement that the tin plate industry of the United States in the current year will be the "biggest ever" illustrates the facility with which American manufacturers and workmen develop great industries in comparatively brief periods. It was not until about 1880, says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, that the manufacture of tin plate in the United States began. Prior to that time we were entirely dependent upon tin plate from abroad and the importations ran into the hundreds of millions of pounds annually, and in the fiscal year 1891 crossed the billion pound line making a value of $36,000,000. Then the American manufacturers, recognizing that while the United States produced no tin they did make plenty of non-ferrous sheets, and that by bringing the tin from the other side of the globe they could apply it to the American iron sheets and supply to the people of the United States the enormous and constantly increasing quantity of tin plate which they were requiring in their building and other industries. In the first year following the establishment of the industry, 1892, they turned out 42,000,000 pounds of tin plate, by 1900 it had reached $50,000,000 pounds. In 1903 the output passed a billion pounds, in 1912 it was over 2,000,000,000, and in 1923 more than 3,000,000,000, and in 1923 it slightly exceeded the high record established in 1917 when we were not only meeting our entire domestic requirements but supplying enormous quantities to other parts of the world. Meantime the importations of foreign tin plate had dropped from the one billion pounds of 1891 to 95,000,000 in 1911, 10,000,000 in 1915, and 1,000,000 in 1917. Since the close of the war there has been a slight increase in the importation but still an extremely small quantity as compared with the domestic production, which as above indicated is now running at the rate of about 3 1/2 billion pounds a year. The whole world has gradually learned the value of American tin plate and the exports, which amounted to less than a quarter of a million pounds in 1900, were 26,000,000 in 1910, 106,000,000 in 1913, and with the demands of the war jumped to 560,000,000 in 1918, dropping of course with the close of the war and resumption of tin plate manufacture in Europe, but will stand for the current year at about 250,000,000 pounds with a value of approximately $13,000,000. All of this 3 1/2 billion pounds of tin plate which we are making in the United States in 1923 is coated with tin brought chiefly from the other side of the globe. The Malayan Peninsula, a couple of tiny Dutch East Indian Islands and our South American neighbor, Bolivia, are the world's chief producers of tin and it is from these three spots, two of them on the opposite side of the globe and one in the interior of South America, that we bring the $60,000,000 worth of pig tin used in turning out this enormous quantity of tin plate. And we pay for a part of this tin ore which we bring chiefly from the Malayan Peninsula and the Dutch East Indies with American sheets of iron or steel coated with the tin brought from those sections of the globe. Our exportation of tin plate to the Straits Settlements, the biggest source of tin, amounted in the calendar year 1921, the latest year for which details are available, to nearly 10,000,000 pounds, and to the Dutch East Indies, which also supply us a large quantity of tin, about 7,000,000 pounds. The total value of tin plate exported from the United States since the beginning of the war is approximately $250,000,000 as against approximately $20,000,000 in the decade preceding the war. The exportation of this comparatively new product of the American factory is now distributed to literally every part of the globe, the total number of countries and colonies to which it was sent in 1921, the latest year for which details are available, having been over eighty. The census records show that the capital invested in the tin plate industry of the country has advanced from $6,650,000 in 1900 to $34,915,000 in 1919 and the same paid for wages from $1,890,000 to $5,756,000. The factory valuation of the tin plate output was $11,892,000 in 1900 and $97,404,000 in 1919.

A COMMUNICATION

October 17, 1923

To the Editor of the Progress:

My attention has been called to your editorial in the Clearfield Progress of October 16th, 1923, in which you say in part: "Council for the officials responsible for having the ballot printed advised that it was necessary under the state law for the Republican County Committee to meet and supply a candidate to fill the vacancy not later than Friday, September 12th, at 5:00 p. m. and in accordance with this instruction the County Chairman acted."

This could refer to no one but the writer as he is counsel for the County Commissioners upon whom by law the duty rests of having the official ballots printed. The statement is an error. The writer did not advise the County Commissioners that Friday, Sept. 12th, at 5:00 p. m. was the last day and hour to certify a successor to Grant H. Thompson as Republican candidate for County Controller. The advice was that the vacancy left in the Republican ticket by the death of Grant H. Thompson could be filled at any time before the election. If a successor to Mr. Thompson was certified to the County Commissioners before the official ballot was printed, the substituted name would appear upon the official ballot, but if the name was certified after the ballots were printed, it could be voted only by stickers prepared at the instance of the County and delivered with the ballots to the election officers.

The writer did not know then and does not know now when the ballots will be printed and hence could not have fixed any date as the last day and hour for certifying a substitute nomination.

WHEN THE SOLE TELLS ONE'S FORTUNE

If we all wear sandals it will be very easy. What will be easy? Why, reading the sole of the foot instead of the palm of the hand, to be sure.

For it looks as though that is what the dreamy-eyed, kikmonga-swathed ladies who peer into the future would come to presently. Some doctor has said that a girl's feet indicate what her disposition is better than her hands, or what old Mammy called her "fingahogany."

So, if Harold wishes to know whether Gladys will make a good wife or not, according to this progressive or thopoeic surgeon, he should have her foot read. Callouses, corns, bunions, and other high-heeled evils indicate a lack of good sense, says the doctor. Low arches mean a cruel and exacting disposition. If Gladys is downright flatfooted, she has every chance of invalidism, and never can make the "good girl" so much desired in the athletic days.

Of course, if Gladys and Ethel and Mae think more of the great good style than they do of health and canons of married happiness, they will keep right on wearing stiff-heeled shoes with French names—heels that curl over at the side and wear off unevenly; that come off now and then in an emergency and give one an unlovely walk at best; heels that are liable to be bent and thrown the wearer headlong and that are responsible, say the thopoeists, for calloused heels that threaten to develop into horny hoofs in a few thousand years or so.

But once let the sport shoe, with its low, broad heel, come into universal use, with one on prettier lines and a bit more raised for dress occasions and the hoof-poll will be averted; straight backs and sunny dispositions will flourish; Gladys and her sisters will be able to tramp and climb and dance without fatigue, and Cupid will wear his kindest smile, with dimples.

As for the sandals that the lovely Grecian maidens of thousands of years ago fastened about their graceful ankles, the business woman might not find them practical in the dusty paved streets of today, but what could be greater for hours of relaxation? And when one hears a wheedle some "Let me read the sole of your foot, my pretty lady," there will be fewer unlovely marks of hard usage to display, and a correspondingly hopeful prophecy for the future may be expected.

For County Commissioner VOTE FOR JOHN BOYCE of Clearfield

BLAKE W. McCracken of Mahaffey

The Nominees of the Independent Party For This Important Office. TO THE VOTERS OF CLEARFIELD COUNTY:

It would take entirely too much space to give all the reasons why the taxpayers of Clearfield County should vote against the present "poor old board" of County Commissioners and replace two of them with the successful business men whose names are presented at the head of this column and will be found marked "Independent" on the November election ballot. But here are a few of the reasons why every taxpayer should vote against the "old board."

Do you know that the "old board" spent $22,000 in outside relief last year? Building political fences for re-election.

Do you know that your taxes have increased about eight mills during their incumbency?

Do you know that two members of that "old board," who want to be re-elected, do not pay one cent of poor or County Home taxes, while every other taxable and district except DuBois, pays 5 1/4 mills poor tax for support and maintenance of the County Home and its inmates?

Do you know that the County spends $50,000 per year on its County Home and that these men who pay not one cent of poor taxes decide, not only what you shall pay, but how that money shall be spent?

Do you know that while all the "party politicians" place holders and organization supporters are preaching party regularity and stick to the ticket, their claims are all political and none—no, not one—has ever offered a word of defense for the "old board?"

Do you know there is a reason for this lack of defense of the "old board"—nothing can be said in their defense. They have been a "poor old board" for the entire four years of their term.

So far as the political angle is concerned, do you recall that when this "poor old board" organized our years ago, one Republican member made a combination with his Democratic colleague, which was not only "political," but was as scheduled to be, an offensive and defensive alliance. It proved to be offensive to every taxpayer but, it was not defensive, as there can be no defense of it made now, in view of what it cost the taxpayers of the County. To start with, while one man ran both County Home and Farm before, it has taken two men since—a steward and a farmer.

Do you know anything about the conditions of the County Home and Farm now? If not, inquire of someone who does.

Every taxpayer owes it to himself to see that this "poor old board" is retired from office at the November election. Clearfield County does an annual business of more than $400,000. The office of County Commissioner is a business proposition. Elect successful business men like John Boyce and Blake W. McCracken to transact the County business for you.

For example, it is guaranteed by Woodward & McPherson to relieve itching, bleeding and protruding piles, eczema, tetter, ulcers, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles and pimples, or money back.

In case of old running sores, no matter how long standing, a few poultices of San Cura Ointment will draw out the poison and leave them in such a thoroughly antiseptic condition that they will heal promptly.

TWO THINGS ABOUT A BANK'S ADVICE

A bank's friendly counsel in the conduct of a customer's business is valuable not only because it is expert, because it is disinterested. Expertness comes from a long experience with the varying problems and desires of many clients, while disinterested judgment is a natural attribute of a bank whose first aim is to render good service to its depositors.

The Clearfield National Bank is anxious at all times to contribute to the sound conduct of its customers' affairs by giving careful consideration to any problem which may be presented to it.

COMMITTEE.

Flower Sermon.

Flower sermon had its origin in St. Catherine Cree, England. On Whit Monday each of the congregation carried a bunch of flowers and a larger bunch was laid on the pulpit cushion. The custom has spread, but it has somewhat changed. Now in many churches the flower sermon is preached on Sunday and the church is decorated with flowers, the members of the congregation also bring flowers with them to the service. The time of holding this service varies in different churches, but it is usually held in the spring or early summer when there is an abundance of garden flowers.

Somewhat in Error.

And Tinkins says he knows some people who give lots of dinners under the impression that they're social leaders when they are only social feeders.

BEHIN HERE TODAY

Hope, daughter of Loring, was a beautiful girl, and her father offered a hundred thousand dollar reward for her return. Acting upon instructions from Hope's father, Loring leaves a hundred thousand dollars north of home in a small place.

Now go on with the story. On their arrival at the garage they found the touring car required and the party ready to start. Charlie, owning the Princess lightly from one car to the other, held her hand a moment in parting promise to meet them all the next Sunday at Mrs. Greenberg's for dinner, and then stood waving as they drove away.

With their departure, he shed his robe of the moneyed Mier Stern business, and he did not betray his dreamer, his training, and he still had his tongue, and it had excited him in more embarrassing circumstances than this. Glibly, steadily he talked on to the garage-keeper, while trying to decide on his next move.

He surreptitiously explored his various pockets in the faint hope of finding some overlooked currency, and his fingers came in contact with a familiar object. Like a magic talisman, it restored his equanimity and courage.

It was an imitation merschaum pipe, and it—rather, his fellow—had for years provided Charlie with what he called, his "little graft." He always carried with him on his journey an assortment of these, retailing at about fifty cents apiece, and on his arrival in a "back" town would set out with one of them in his pocket carefully wrapped up in an old silk handkerchief.

In the office of the railroad hotel or at the main street pool parlor, he would start down his prospective victim—sometimes a lounging patron, sometimes the proprietor of the place—and strike up a conversation, mesmerizing him with his gift of language. Then at the psychological moment he would draw out his pipe, and handing it as tenderly as if it were some rare treasure, would offer it for inspection.

"My father put in thirty-two years coloring that down," he would say, firmly, poverty resistant, "I bought it with him when he came over from the other side, and gave it to me on his death-bed. I never thought that anything could make me part with it, but old Hard Luck is some persuader and I've made up my mind to let it go. Of course, if I had time to turn a deal, I could easily get as high as four or five hundred for a pipe like that; but these bum lungs of mine tell me that I can't afford to lose any time getting to Arizona." Here a hollow cough would shake his whole frame.

"So, if you know of anybody, friend, that's willing to come across with the twenty-five I need to make up my fare to Phoenix, the moon-shiner's there."

The listener generally fell for the bargain, and by the time the fraud was discovered and the constable set on his trail, Charlie would be many miles away.

Of course, with the garage-keeper, he had to vary his story, and adapt it to his character as canvasser for

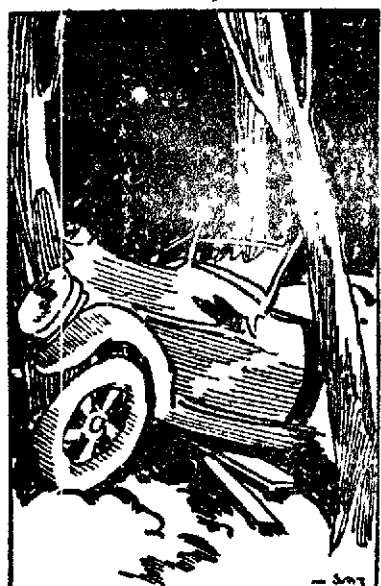

put-together-yourself furniture, but he did it so effectively that when he closed the transaction, he had paid all charges against him and had eleven dollars to boot. Then resolutely putting out of his mind the Princess, the garage-keeper Ranger everything that in connection with his study of the problem before him, he raced toward Long Island.

CHAPTER XVIII

It was just about the time that Charlie had gained from the Princess the clue which pointed to the Sanitarium that Hope and Kelsey in Bristol's high-powered car went crashing through the hedge and sweeping down the road.

Their plan had been to drive west, change the car at some garage, first driving it, and then proceed in an other less conspicuous one to New York.

But Kelsey noticed that she had headed east, which was well as it would lead the pursuit in that direction. Half a mile beyond the hospital, though, she turned into a narrow row lane, and he soon saw that by circuitous routes she was now making her way west.

Neither of them spoke. Crouched over the wheel, Hope drove a valkyrie of a driver and for the time nothing more every fiber of her bent on that. And in the first instant of escape, Kelsey gave no thought to the dangers still before them.

Twilight was falling now. As they whirled on, following tangled and tortuous by-paths, he could no longer see ahead of him.

With a twist of the wheel Hope brought them out of a lane they had been following through the scrub-oak onto a more traveled highway, and ahead of them he saw the lights of a garage. She slowed down and stopped rubbing her numb hands.

"Run ahead and reconnoiter," she said, "and I will get ready to put the carburetor out of commission, if the coast is clear. Then, with another car, we will make a detour around that bend and strike into the main road."

He was already out of the car, and starting on his way. Two or three minutes passed and then he came running back. "There's a car there," he panted. "There were men in it—Bristol's chauffeur. The garage men were gathered around it. We haven't a second to lose. They're after us."

She jumped into her seat, and slowed the machine sharply around. They whizzed down the road and back into the scrub-oak again. He heard shouts behind them, and the loud honking of a horn, with an an-

Grant Keen, of Chester Hill, who was arrested recently for violating the liquor law by local police officers, and since Chester Hill is not in Centre county, Judge Quigley, of Bellefonte, refused to hear the case until Keen was brought back to await trial before Judge James Finnegan of Chester Hill and furnished bail in the amount of $500 for his appearance at court.

He looked back again. "They're on us now," he said. "They're on us now."

The words were hardly out of his mouth when a flash of light and the purr of an engine and the pulsing car shot by them to draw up ahead in the middle of the road.

There was nothing for them but to stop. They could not hope to pass a car that narrow, and it was equally impossible to turn.

As the car passed them, Kelsey had made out that there were two men in it. One of them leaped over the side, and came running back. Kelsey flexed his muscles and waited. The man hurrying toward them was a big burly fellow, but Kelsey was no lightweight himself. Armed or unarmed, he was ready for him and then he'd take on the other both at the same time for that matter.

The man held something in his hand, but it was not a gun. "That you Dr. Bristol?" he said, coming close and speaking in a harsh, husky whisper. He halted, his jaw falling. "What, then, was Hope leaning forward. 'I am Miss Copley,' she said. 'I wasn't quite sure of the doctor's directions.'"

"Oh? Miss Copley?" His truculence gave way to relief. He thrust a bulky envelope into her hand with out a word, and turned back to his own car.

"Better let us get a piece ahead," he muttered over his shoulder. "I've got an idea we're being trailed. We just shook off a couple of other cars."

He was gone. The car in front started and whizzed. There was no time for question or comment, no time to express wonder at this strange incident. Hope had thrown the envelope into Kelsey's lap, and was once more driving at full speed.

The Morris Road, wide and smooth, opened out before them, and many automobiles were on it.

"We have to cross here," she murmured. "Pray that our luck holds."

Kelsey set out while she drove down the highway for about a quarter of a mile. Motors passed them, going in both directions, but no one interrupted them. Then she turned off and soon they were in a tree-lined lane, where the ground was rougher than any over which they had passed.

They seemed to have thrown off the pursuit. Then the stillness was broken by the staccato coughing of a motor-cycle somewhere before them.

Before Kelsey realized her intention, she jerked the car to the left in so short a turn that they made it on two wheels.

He saw an open space before him. A tall stump seemed to rise out of the ground. She swerved frantically to avoid it, and they crashed into a tree. Blackness! He knew no more. Hope thrown clear of the wreck struggled for her breath, and then rose uncertainly to her knees. A man was bending over her.

HEARD ALONG THE BANKS OF THE MOSHANNON.

Grant Keen, of Chester Hill, who was arrested recently for violating the liquor law by local police officers, and since Chester Hill is not in Centre county, Judge Quigley, of Bellefonte, refused to hear the case until Keen was brought back to await trial before Judge James Finnegan of Chester Hill and furnished bail in the amount of $500 for his appearance at court.

Congressman Matthew Crough and private Harry I. Land, of the Altoona state police, have returned to the former city after having arrested several Clearfield county residents for violating the liquor law. Joseph Roman's home at Osceola Mills, was raided and two barrels of mash, a half gallon of moonshine and a still were taken. He furnished bail in the sum of $200. Benjamin Kozlowski, also of that place, was arrested and a still, a barrel of mash and one and one-half gallons of liquor taken. He was taken to jail in default of bail. These are only a couple of the numerous cases in Clearfield county that ought to be investigated.

Mrs. Laura J. Fleck, of South Phillipsburg, was laid to rest Wednesday afternoon. Her death occurred Sunday afternoon. She was in her seventieth year.

H. J. Hoffman, of Phillipsburg, is at DuBois, attending the funeral of his cousin, Lee Hoffman, who met death early Sunday morning along with two other DuBois residents, when the mine in which they had gone to look things over caved in on them. The other men were Daniel McQuown and Percy Britton. The men are well known in this section. Hon. Clinton N. Howard, the little Giant of the Platform, gave an excellent lecture to a crowded house at the Methodist church Tuesday evening when he spoke on the subject "Case Through the Prince of Peace."

Frank Magloski, of Houtdale, who committed suicide by hanging himself to a bedpost, was well known throughout this section by the young people. He was but 24 years of age. And it is thought he was suffering from mental trouble when the terrible affair took place late Sunday night or early Monday.

PETERS—YOUNG

At the Methodist parsonage at Woodland, Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, Mr. Rex Peters and Miss Maud Young, both of Mifflinsburg, were united in marriage by Rev. G. M. B. Reidell. They were attended by Clair Young of Clearfield, a brother of the bride and his wife. The happy couple will reside at Woodland.

A WORD FROM A DEFEATED CANDIDATE

To the 1750 friends, neighbors and citizens of Clearfield county who supported me in the September Primary Election for the nomination of County Commissioner I wish to express my deepest appreciation for the interest shown in my campaign, I respect your friendship and value your confidence.

Owing to the fact that there exists some dissatisfaction as to the result of the nomination on the Republican ticket for Commissioners, some of my friends have requested that I continue the fight as an independent nominee which request I must refuse. I desire to say in support of my refusal that I cannot do otherwise with fairness to myself and the Republican Party.

My position in the Republican party is not to either rule or ruin but to be governed by election results. The Republican ticket consisted of ten candidates for Commissioner, for office we all made an honest fight looking for votes wherever they could be found, all had the same chance and all fought under the same rule and the voters decided under the Primary Election law of Pennsylvania who should be their choice and as one defeated candidate I am willing to manfully abide by the voters' decision.

While it is true the two nominees on the Republican ticket did not receive a majority vote of all votes cast we must remember they were not required to do so under the law it would be most impossible for any two men to receive a majority of all votes cast with ten (10) reasonably good men in the field. If such a feat could be accomplished then in such a case the candidates should not be required to go on the November ballot and would be elected by acclamation.

I hereby express my opinion in reply to my friends who would have me make an independent effort and a reminder to convince the good citizenship of Clearfield County the necessity of standing firmly behind both the Republican and Democratic tickets as Nominated.

Very truly yours for Republican Success in November.

WRIGHT—PUMMINGS

Alfred H. Wright and Miss Grace Pummings were united in the bonds of matrimony at the West Side M. E. church on Saturday evening Oct. 13th, at seven o'clock by the pastor, William L. Armstrong. They were accompanied by the bride's mother Mrs. Maggie Pummings and Mrs. Annie E. Rainey of Clearfield, Pa.

The bride's home is at Olanta, Pa. and the groom is located at Kennecott, Pa., where he is employed as station agent for the N. Y. C. railroad. It is here that the happy young couple will locate. After the ceremony they departed for Olanta, where a joyous reception was awaiting them amid expressions of congratulations and well wishes.

THIS LITTLE BABY GIRL

Was Benefited by the Good Her Mother Got from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my little girl was born, and the effect it had was wonderful. This will be the first child I have nursed, as I had to bring my two boys up on the bottle. I was very nervous and worried, and all the time, and for I read about the Vegetable Compound I tried it and kept on with it. I still continue to use it and recommend it to my friends. These facts are as good a testimonial for your medicine."—Mrs. Wm. K. 169 Plymouth St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Tuberculosis Society

HEALTH HANDBOOK BEING DISTRIBUTED IN STATE

The Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society has received the first lot of the new health handbook. The handbook is a small, handy volume, which will be distributed to all schools and other organizations which have been asked to receive it.

We have additional copies of this handbook for teachers. Special prices are quoted for quantities. Address the Secretary, 10 South Fifth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

QUARTERLY MEETING

The regular quarterly meeting of the society will be held on Friday, October 20th at the Dining Room, Clearfield at 10 P. M. It will start with a lecture on "The Tuberculosis Problem," which will be given by Dr. Louis Dublin, a specialist in the disease. The lecture will be followed by a discussion of the health handbook, and the meeting will close with a social hour.

"MISS ROSIE CHECKS"

We can not hold but a moment more of this little health play presented through the efforts of our society at the Thursday morning session at the Clearfield High School. The play, "Miss Rosie Checks," was a very well received and many teachers expressed the desire for material that they could use in the same way with their own pupils. This will be sent to anyone desiring same by addressing Mrs. Philip Reed, Clearfield. Mrs. Reed has just sent out the health handbook material to those teachers who signed up for it at the meeting. If you have not received yours and want some write her at once.

THIS MEANS YOU. SCHOOLS TO BE PROVIDED

At the recent meeting of the Executive Committee it was decided to purchase scales for the schools of Clearfield, for the Clearfield Township, and for the lower end of the county. We hope to be able to transfer the scales from one school to the other in the rural districts and in time have enough to afford an opportunity to get the weight and height of every pupil during the school year one or more times.

REAL LIFE SAVING SERVICE

Dr. Louis Dublin, Statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., says the following: "We are especially optimistic for the future because of the amazing reduction in the death rate from tuberculosis which is occurring throughout the world. Since 1911, the disease has declined 50 per cent among those insured in the Metropolitan and almost as much in the general population of a number of progressive cities. The development of a well conceived campaign against all those conditions which reflect personal hygiene and the general care and use of the human body can be made to show just as good results as we are able to show from our campaign against tuberculosis." Isn't the effort worth while?

Print the alphabet on two and one-half inch squares of cardboard, duplicating common letters, and distribute among children. Write on board the name of any fruit, as orange. As soon as the word is written children holding o-r-a-n-g-e come out and stand in order—each holding card in front. Word is then spelled by children forming it, also by others. Another child then calls "Come here, Orange" and players run to their seats. After five or six words, teacher may say "Stand out, Orange" and the children run out in correct order. All words may be reviewed in this way.

CRUSADE AMMUNITION

In Wayne County (Mich.) schools a variety of devices for stimulating the interest of the pupils in the Crusade work has been developed by the teachers. In one school, the pupils learn two health songs every month; in another, the boys and girls have a contest, the losers to give the winners a picnic. Many schools are conducting poster contests or making health books. In one school a corner in several rooms was devoted to health work. Posters worked out from many cards were a feature of this display. The children had to find pictures of portions of "The Fishy Boat" that would equal so many calories, and then arrange these artistically.

The presentation of health plays is a device which never fails to appeal to the entire community. The children who take part in the play never forget the health lesson they are trying to "put over" and even though they may not be finished actors, the play is of lasting benefit to the participants. Frequently the interest of the parents and friends of the children can be stirred in such fashion that lackadaisical school trustees find themselves "prowled into action." The cooperation of the local newspapers, too, will feature the plays and thus draw the attention of the community to the health work that is being done in the school.

AT THE COUNTY FAIR

That public interest in better health has grown tremendously during the past five years was certainly evidenced by the attractive booth maintained at the Fair by Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society.

Four years ago the local organization had a booth for the first time. It taught more about the fight against tuberculosis and to give children and adults a chance to find out if they were up to normal in weight, height, etc. Each year has seen the interest grow and last week Miss Atwood of the society assisted by Miss Phillips of the State Department of Health weighed and measured between 500 and 600 children from all sections of the county. It would be difficult to guess how many parents also had their measures taken and were anxious to know if they were up to normal or not.

The Tuberculosis Society is surely doing an active service throughout the county and each year is broadening its scope. Of course each of us who helps this worthy work by buying the little seals at Xmas time does his or her bit toward making it possible. Health literature was distributed to several thousand visitors to the booth.

Can Pay Too High for Peace.

We love peace as we all should; but not peace at any price. There is a peace that is more destructive than the manifold of little men. The war is destructive of his material body. Chains are worse than bayonets. Douglas Jerrold.

NEW CLINIC NURSE

It is a pleasure to be able to announce that the State Department of Health, Tuberculosis Division, has appointed Miss Florence Gray as dispensary nurse to cover the Clearfield district vacated last June by the resignation of Miss Lindgren. We all know this means a great deal in the success of our activities as the local dispensary service with the State nurse have always cooperated in a wonderful manner. We hope that you will meet Miss Gray when she comes into your community and advise her of any tuberculous cases you may know of.

GREETINGS

With this first issue of our little health news medium for the season of 1923-24 we extend a greeting to each and everyone who is now interested or whom we can now get interested in our welfare work. It shall be our purpose as last year to advise you of the progress of our work, suggest aids and means of accomplishing greater things; notify you of meetings of workers; in brief, to be of service to the members and friends of the Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society wherever we may or can. We hope you will read every word of every issue we can produce and suggest that you enter your name to some one else to read. If you have anything of interest in your town or in your school write us about it, for we can thus make our little sheet one of county-wide interest. The number of issues will of course be limited as last year by the funds available and we must depend upon a successful Xmas seal sale for this as for all our various efforts. Of this we will have more to say ere long for the Xmas season will be here before we know it and we must enlist the services of everyone at that time.

DAVE HARMAN HERE

Famous Band to Appear at Fairview Park.

One announcement of the season at least is destined to be welcomed with great enthusiasm and that is the forthcoming appearance at Fairview Park, Orosola Mills on Thursday evening, October 18, 1923 of Dave Harman and his famous orchestra under the auspices of the Triangle Amusement Company. No organization now on tour in America has met with such widespread and brilliant success as has come to this famous orchestra. Each member is a star musician and the unity with which the orchestra plays its dance music has never been excelled by any organization in existence.

Their appearance this evening at Fairview Park is being eagerly anticipated by all who appreciate dance music of the highest type and it is safe to predict that they will be greeted by a record breaking throng.

Save the Repair Bill.

When the bells refuse to respond do not send for the electrician before you examine the battery. Perhaps the water has evaporated; in that case a little water added will repair the bell. If this does not prove satisfactory empty the battery and refill with water, then add salt ammoniac, allowing a quarter pound to one quart of water. The probabilities are you will save the repair bill.

AND HER VIOLIN!

What could be the bond between them? Driven like ships bound for the Port of Prince and Pauper. Was it just the magic of her melody that came like a shaft of light to these people in the shadows? Or was it something else?

Music? Magic? Love? Perhaps a power greater still! Whatever it is, it echoes through this picture, a song of the soul that will linger in your memory for days to come.

FAMED VIOLINIST WILL APPEAR IN PHILIPSBURG

Estelle Gray-Lhevinne, Adored American Artist, at the Rowland Theatre on Oct. 25th.

Estelle Gray-Lhevinne, the adored American violinist, who is being acclaimed by her audiences throughout the world as the greatest living woman violinist, will appear at the Rowland Theatre, Philipshurg, Pa. on Thursday evening, Oct. 25th, at 8:15 o'clock.

Madame Gray-Lhevinne began her most important and closely booked season of her unique career on September 24th, and from that date to December 17 she will fill sixty-seven concert engagements. It was only thru extraordinary efforts that Madame Gray-Lhevinne was persuaded to give a concert in Philipshurg which is the smallest town in which she will appear this season. The concert will be given under the auspices of the community league.

Madame Gray-Lhevinne is in the first flush of her vivid charm. Many cities are having a group of concerts by her; for instance, she is opening the Cleveland Musical Association of Master Musicians this fall, and is doing the same at the Carnegie Music Hall in Pittsburgh. Many of the leading music artists' series, which had Kreisher as their violin feature last year are being opened by Madame Gray-Lhevinne.

The Chicago Herald says, "Here is a violinist who can find a smile in the classics and make you smile with her." It really takes a supreme artist a past master of platform art, one with the lifetime of public knowledge to be able to have the dramatic hold Gray-Lhevinne has on her audiences, with only a violin and bow (plus personality) to sway the moods from tears to laughter—from breathless climaxes to restful repose. Gray-Lhevinne is an artist from the crown of her head to the tips of her dainty feet, so perfect is her art, the music seems to fairly flow from her body through the violin to your heart. At times it seems hardly possible that any human being could produce such wondrous sounds as those issuing from Gray-Lhevinne's old Cremona and it seems as though she is the soul of the fiddle breathed into it by its master maker many, many years ago. The old fiddle upon which Madame Gray-Lhevinne bows was made by Corelli in 1715. It has been owned by Pergolesi, Mozart, Maria Theresa, Paganini and others. The famous old Cremona has a history as the most valuable violin in the world. Its tones are lucious and its penetrating sweetness penetrates the deepest corners of the largest auditorium.

You cannot afford to miss this wonderful opportunity of a lifetime, to hear this world-famed artist at the Rowland Theatre on Oct. 25th. The admission rates are $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00 are very low for such a splendid, artistic and brilliant concert as Estelle Gray-Lhevinne.

Madame Gray-Lhevinne and her old Cremona has appeared in hundreds of concerts in America and in Europe. Wherever she has played, she has won the hearts of her audiences, regardless of whether they were "highbrow" music lovers or just ordinary lovers of entertainment that reaches the soul and heart. In other words Gray-Lhevinne plays for all of her audience.
